Beer Distributors' Lawsuit Dismissed

Portland — (U.P.) — Circuit Judge James R. Bain yesterday dismissed a suit brought by a group of brewers and beer distributors here to test an Oregon Liquor Control Commission ban against beer wholesalers performing certain gratuitous services.

The distributors had challenged the law as unwarranted. The court ruled that brewers and wholesalers who were dissatisfied with the law should seek relief from the state legislature rather than through the courts.

Portland law prohibits distributors and wholesalers from performing such services as reselling, advertising, displaying or inspecting draft equipment.

Phone Directories Searched for $520

Medford, Mass. — (U.P.) — Roal Reyes hit $520 in the pages of a telephone directory when she had to leave the house Wednesday.

While she was gone, the telephone company showed up with 1957 books and the baby sitter turned over the old book in exchange.

Six men searched through 9,000 copies of the 1,054-page Boston classified directory Thursday without any luck. The hunt is continuing.
