Two of Nation's Oldest Magazines To Stop Publishing

New York — (U.P.) — Two of the nation's oldest magazines, Collier's and Woman's Home Companion, are going out of business.

Heavy financial losses was cited as the reason for the suspension, announced Friday night by Paul C. Smith, president and chairman of the board of the Crowell Collier Publisher Co., which publishes both magazines.

The decision was made at a meeting of the company's board of directors, which had been called to decide the fate of Crowell-Collier's last two magazines.

Collier's, founded in 1888, will be suspended after the Jan. 4 issue. Woman's Home Companion, started in 1873, will cease publication with the January issue.

Book Publisher

Smith said the magazines lost "over $7.5 million" this year. The company, a successful book publisher, will have a loss of "about $2.5 million," he said.

Gardner Cowles, president of Cowles Magazines, Inc. which publishes Look Magazine, said an agreement had been reached with Crowell- Collier to take over obligation for unfilled subscriptions for Collier's.

In addition, he said, his firm is acquiring the magazine title "Collier's." Each subscriber to Collier's will be offered the choice of Look or any one of several other magazines.

"Any subscriber requesting a cash refund for the unexpired portion of his Collier's subscription will receive a refund check," Cowles said.

Crowell-Collier is making arrangements with other publishers for the fullfillment of unexpired subscriptions to Woman's Home Companion, Cowles said.

$5,000 Gift Shows Profit for Student

Madison, Wis.—(U.P.)—A father's gift of $5,000 has multiplied into $30,000 during David Falk's four years at the University of Wisconsin.

When the 21-year-old youth came here from Hampton, Va., his father told him to finance his collegiate career with the $5,000. Instead, Falk blew the entire sum as a deposit on a men's rooming house.

"I wanted to get married and this would give me a good source of income," Falk said Friday. He started with 24 boarders, two apartments and a room for himself. He spent his extra income from the house, which he had repaired and remodeled, to purchase 47 acres of woodland near Madison.

He peddled two chunks of the land for "more than I paid for the whole 47," he said. After buying another rooming house, he swapped his first building for another, making a profit on the deal.

Because he expects to graduate in either June or August, Falk plans to sell out his real estate. He estimated that he should pull in $30,000 "conservatively" due to equity and price jumps because of repairs.

Falk and his wife, Arlene, plan to convert their profits into a farm in Virginia. However, he will probably spend two years in the Army after he graduates.

The Falks were married last January.

Klamath Project Plans Announced

Klamath Falls—(U.P.)—Plans for a Klamath project extension program to serve 14,000 additional acres of land were announced today by the bureau of reclamation and the Klamath Irrigation district.

Ray Roberts, manager of the Klamath Irrigation District, said the plan calls for enlarging four canals and building three new pumping plants to provide permanent water rights for some 10,000 acres that currently are irrigated under temporary water rental agreements and additional 4,000 acres of dry land farms.

The project will serve farmers in the Poe Valley, Olene, Pine Grove, Merrill, Malin and Henley areas.

Don Gray, reclamation bureau engineer, said construction costs for enlarging the canals would be about $2 an acre per year for 40 years, plus a proportionate share of operation and maintenance.

He said that before a contract with the bureau of reclamation can be executed, two-thirds of the land owners affected must authorize extension of irrigation district boundaries and must designate enough acres for irrigation to make the project feasible.

Reclamation officials said they hope Congress will appropriate the necessary funds at its next session so that the system may be functioning by 1959.
