The Family Council

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual report. The Family Council does not give advice; it merely reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Mrs. J. R. — The boss made a pass at my daughter.

Dora R. — I'll never tell mother anything again.

Mrs. J. R. — My 19-year-old daughter is a secretary in a small office. She works in close association with her boss all day.

A few months ago, Dora told me her boss had made a pass at her. I told her she must leave the office at once. She refused to do this, saying she liked her job and felt she could manage her boss.

I was so worried that I telephoned her boss and asked to see him. He turned out to be an attractive, well-mannered man in his mid 30s. When I told him what my daughter had told me, he looked shocked and denied it. He said he was a happily married man and wouldn't dream of doing anything like that, but he said he thought that Dora ought to leave if she felt that way.

He was so convincing that I asked him to let the matter rest there and said I would discuss it further with my daughter. When I brought it up, Dora turned on me furiously and said she would never tell me anything again. Did I do wrong?

Dora R. — My mother has completely messed up my situation at this office. My boss now treats me in a very nasty way and I can see he is trying to get rid of me.

On top of that, my mother now thinks I am a liar. The fact is that my boss did make a pass at me, but I was willing to forgive him because it was at an office party and he may have had one drink too many. It wasn't important enough to make a fuss. I like him in spite of everything.

This job is now done for and it is my mother's fault. She treats me like a 12-year-old. When I told some of my friends what she had done, they said they would just kill themselves if anything like that happened to them. How could she embarrass me so?

I am now looking for another job, but I realize no job will work out for me as long as my mother meddles in my affairs. My friends tell me I was crazy to tell my mother anything.

The Council: Dora did right to tell her mother about a situation that disturbed her, but her mother did not handle it correctly.

From Dora's account, there is some question as to whether an actual "pass" was made. This doesn't mean that Dora is a liar, but simply that she may have placed a wrong interpretation on some unexpectedly lively or friendly word or gesture. She may have been frightened by the attraction she felt toward this man.

Dora's mother accepted her alarm at face value and then rejected it at face value. Did she expect the man to admit it, if it

Crosby Subpoenaed For Senate Hearing

Portland—(U.P.)—Clyde C. Crosby, top teamster union official in Oregon, has been subpoenaed to appear before a Senate investigating committee on Jan. 15, according to Frank W. Brewster, president of the Western Conference of Teamsters.

Brewster said in San Francisco that the committee also had subpoenaed the records of the Western conference for Dec. 27 but he added he doubted they could be made ready that soon. He said the records are now being boxed and crated in Seattle for shipment to Washington.

Brewster said Crosby had been subpoenaed as an individual and that no records were involved in his case.

Brewster himself was not subpoenaed but the committee has asked for guest registers of hotels where he stayed in 1955 and 1956.

Elderly Man Killed As Fire Burns Cabin

Bridge, Ore.—(U.P.)—A Coos county man, Frank G. Carlson, 84, was burned to death in the one-room cabin near Rock Creek late Monday.

Officers said the tiny home apparently caught fire when a home-made lantern overturned and spilled flaming kerosene across the room.
