

Events of the Holidays

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Nissley Miller, married December 21 in First Presbyterian church in Medford, posed for this picture following the reception held in the home of the bride's parents, Justice and Mrs. William McAllister, 2615 Hillcrest road—(Landis-Shangle photo)

Mrs. Helene Danker was named queen of the Junior Service league's annual Christmas Ball December 21 when her headdress was judged the most outstanding. It was a miniature merry-go-round with Santa Claus and reindeer. Dr. Ralph E. Hibbs announced winners.

A formal ball at Rogue Valley Country club December 22 honored queens and queens-elect of Bethels 14 and 55, International Order of Job's Daughters. Miss Margaret Selby (at left) is queen-elect of Bethel 55 and Miss Ann Garner will be the new queen of Bethel 14.

Among the guests at the Junior Service league's Christmas Ball December 21 at Rogue Valley Country club were (left to right) Mrs. Robert E. Schott, Mr. Schott, James Keeble and Mrs. Keeble. Mrs. Schott's headdress was a tiny lamp post and sign which read "Christmas Greetings." The Keebles, who are spending the holidays with Mrs. Keeble's mother, Mrs. Floyd Hart, Grant road, will leave January 4 for southern California and plan to spend the next several weeks sailing down the coast of lower California in their newly purchased ketch.

Both the main dining room and the new Crest room of Rogue Valley Country club were filled with guests for the Christmas Ball of Junior Service league. Seated at one table were (facing camera, left to right) Mrs. Lawrence McEachron, John Raapke, Mrs. John Dickson and Dr. Dickson and (backs to camera) Mrs. Raapke, Mr. McEachron, Dr. Lawrence Buonacore and Mrs. Buonacore. Mrs. Raapke's huge headdress, a simulated mountain snow scene made by her husband, was one of four to win honorable mention from the judges.
