Woman Honored On 98th Birthday

Portland — (U.P.) — One of the last two known survivors of the days before Oregon became a state celebrated her 98th birthday in Portland Saturday.

To honor the occasion, friends of Miss Henrietta DeWitt Crawford gave her a party — complete with cake and presents — at the Mann Home for the Aged where she now lives.

Miss Crawford and 103-year-old Sarah Catherine Wing of Ashland apparently are the only ones left of the 50,000 persons living in Oregon when it attained statehood on Feb. 14, 1859.

Mrs. Melvin H. Carter, secretary of the now defunct Oregon Pioneer Society, said the two women are the only known surviving pioneers of pre-statehood days.

Miss Crawford was born Dec. 29, 1858, on her father's farm at the confluence of the Yamhill and Willamette rivers in what now is Yamhill county.

The Medical Roundup

Tranquilizing Drugs and Skin Diseases

In Austria, S. Wolfram has found that reserpine can help in relieving skin diseases — and especially psoriasis. It can help in relieving itching in some skin troubles but not in others. Naturally, it helped beautifully in many of the cases in which the skin trouble was due purely to nervousness. It did not help so often in cases of itching of the crotch, and it did not help much in cases of allergic skin lesions. Other investigators have had some good results with the other tranquilizers.

New Treatments Suggested by Laymen

Every so often, kind people send me a description of some treatment which they have found is good for their particular disease. Just because it has cured them they think it should cure many other persons. Often their sudden recovery after their failure to get well on the usual medicines is very impresive, and I am interested. Unfortunately, no doctor can get excited about any treatment that has cured only one person or even two or three. When one tries the medicine on 10 or 20 persons with the disease, usually nothing happens.

Some of these treatments are so complicated that they remind me of the wonderful flea powder that a man once invented and patented at great expense. You caught the flea, and holding it between the index finger and the thumb of your left hand, you put some of the powder on the insect. Then you took out your watch, you waited five minutes and he was dead!

Dr. Alvarez hopes his readers will understand that it would be impossible for him to answer requests for information or attempt to diagnose by mail.

The Family Council

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual report. The Family Council does not give advice; it merely reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Charlotte K.—We should save for our old age.

Hugh K.—I want to enjoy life now.

* * *

Charlotte K.—My husband and I are in our mid-50s. Our two children were recently married. For the first time we are free of financial worries and can save a little money.

I feel that for the next ten years we should have a plan for saving and investing. I want to take a part-time job and move to as small and inexpensive an apartment as we can find. If we are very careful, we can save enough to supplement our old age security and could retire without having to worry about being a burden on the kids.

My husband, however, won't agree to this plan. He is very impractical and wants to indulge in expensive hobbies and take luxury vacations. He was never one to worry about the future and that's why we're in a tough spot now.

* * *

Hugh K.—Charlotte has always had a miserly streak in her. The children never would have had much fun if it were up to her.

It's true I have expensive hobbies like photography and collecting rare coins, but these things make life worthwhile. I haven't seriously indulged in these hobbies up until now and I want to enjoy them while I can.

The way I look at it is we ought to live now and enjoy ourselves. I don't like a cramped apartment. I like a place where we can entertain and I want space for a darkroom for my photography.

We are both in good health and can enjoy life. In ten years we may not be able to do these things. What's the sense of living in the future? I don't want to be a burden on the children either but we can live cheaply in our old age instead of now.

* * *

The Council — Psychologists and other experts on the problems of aging and retirement would go along with Hugh's plan rather than Charlotte's.

Hugh is really being much more realistic and practical about the future when he thinks in terms of expanding his interests and getting more instead of less out of life. The kind of cramped life Charlotte projects is deadening. By the time this couple would be ready to retire and "enjoy" their leisure, they would find that their outlook has become so narrow they would have little to live for. Perhaps they would not be a financial burden on their children, but they could become a psychological burden. Their children would be very unhappy to see their parents experiencing a listless old age.

The total retirement Charlotte hopes for is also impractical and leads to an empty old age. Her plan to take a part-time job is a good one, but it would be better if she thought in terms of keeping that job as long as she is able to handle it. If she did, she would have less worry about saving now. Charlotte should also follow her husband's example and cultivate some interests of her own.
