

New Successes Seen For Peace in 1957 by Premier N. Bulganin

London—(AP)—Russian Premier Nikolai Bulganin ushered in the new year with a prediction that peace will score "new successes" in 1957 despite "aggressive plans of international reaction."

Bulganin answered questions submitted to him by the editor in chief of the Polish radio.

Asked "what in your opinion should 1957 bring to mankind," Bulganin replied:

"The aggressive circles of some Western countries and their propaganda are making considerable efforts to fill people with pessimism and lack of confidence as regards prospects for the preservation and consolidation of peace, to make them believe in the fatal inevitability of an armaments race and war."

Cites Suez Crisis

"In their striving to prevent the relaxation of international tension, they engage in military adventures and provocations. The Anglo-French-Israeli aggression in Egypt and the counter-revolutionary mutiny in Hungary are clear manifestations of that."

"However, the peoples hate the armaments race and war. They want a peaceful and calm life for themselves and for the following generations, and they are filled with a desire to foil the machinations of the enemies of peace. This is a reliable sign that the idea of peace will score more and more new successes, despite all aggressive plans of international reaction."

Looks for Peace

"There is every reason to think that the coming of 1957 will be marked with important victories by peoples in their struggle for the preservation and consolidation of peace, for the relaxation of international tension, for the triumph of the principle of peaceful co-existence of states with different social systems. As before, the Soviet Union will not miss any opportunity to ensure that peace and security are guaranteed."

Bulganin said that "important" agreements had been reached between Poland and the Soviet Union in the past year and said that in 1957 the two nations would continue joint efforts to widen cooperation in all fields of economic, cultural and political life.

TABLE ROCK Future of Club Discussed

BY R. E. NEALON

Table Rock—The Community Christmas tree and program held Friday night was attended by visitors from several other communities as well as local people. After a "volunteer" program, old Santa Claus was ushered in with his bag of treats to the delight of the younger set.

At the business meeting some discussion was held on future plans of the club which was organized more than thirty years ago to work on community problems and furnish entertainment for the members.

Since consolidation of the school and the installing of home television sets, attendance has gradually decreased and it seems to be difficult to find a meeting date that activity conflict with a school activity or a favorite TV program. Mrs. Ernest Smith has volunteered to head a committee to work out some plan to create more interest and attendance.

Mrs. F. R. Myers and Mrs. J. S. Richardson will have charge of the January program.

the day before Christmas, after spending several months in Medford, while their fire damaged dwelling was being reconstructed.

O. T. Wilson stopped in the other day and was telling us that Santa Claus had brought his wife, Peggy, a new fangled rug, so now to get into the house, he has to take off his shoes and clean his little dogs feet or go full-shod to the dog house with a dirty footed dog.

The election of officers for the coming year in the local Sunday school resulted in the following being elected: Bert Pierce, superintendent, R. E. Nealon, assistant superintendent, Alan Fleischer, secretary, and Mrs. Bert Pierce treasurer.

Persons who have lived in one place for all these many years, have seen people come and go, some to far away places, and others scattered around in closer localities. At Christmas time many remember old time, as well as newer friends, so we receive and send many Christmas cards, from Maine to Washington, from California to Georgia, and some from foreign lands. So if we have overlooked some, it was not done intentionally, and we do appreciate, and are greatly pleased to get the cards with their good will messages.
