The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic
Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

THE FAILURE TO NOTE QUALIFYING WORDS

One of the greatest difficulties in the way of helping persons to understand medicine and science in general is the inability of a large number of our men and women to notice qualifying words or phrases, or to realize how all-important these are.

They are tremendously important in science, and yet, in a quotation, they are commonly ignored or deleted.

I will never forget my embarrassment one day years ago. I had said in an address before a medical society that on questioning 250 adults who had had a so-called chronic appendix removed surgically to cure some nervousness or gas or diarrhea I had found three who had been helped; the others had said they had gotten nothing from the operation. What happened then was that a cub reporter forgot my qualifying words, and wrote that I had said that only 3 out of 250 operations for appendicitis were successful! He forgot the words, "adult," "so-called," and "chronic," and as a result, many of my medical friends thought I must have lost my mind.

Scathing Letter

I remembered this recently when I received a scathing letter from a woman who accused me of gross ignorance and viciousness "in saying that a salt-free diet is of no value." What the woman had failed to note was that I had used many qualifying words. I had said that a salt-poor diet could be a life-saver in certain cases of severe injury to the kidneys, or of heart failure in which dropsy is a symptom. I said a salt-poor diet could at times be helpful in tiding over persons suffering with a bad attack of the severe type 3 or 4 high blood pressure. But I said I doubted if any expert in the treatment of high blood pressure would think of prescribing a strict salt-poor diet for a woman of 60 with a symptomless and moderate type 1 hypertension. Experts would say that such treatment would be worse than the disease.

AF Extends Sympathy To Parents of Boy

Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.—(UPI)—The Air Force today extended its sympathy to the parents of a three-year-old boy who died of exposure in a below-freezing temperature after becoming lost over night in the desert.

Helicopter pilot Maj. James Seigler early Tuesday spotted the lightly-clad boy of Bill Ray Tyree in a sagebrush and sand area less than two miles from this base's main gate. Standing guard beside the boy's body was his uncle's pet cocker spaniel.

More than 1,000 airmen and civilians had combed the desert in temperatures that dropped to 28 degrees.

Billy Ray and the dog apparently wandered away from the base housing project Monday afternoon.

The boy, son of an airman stationed here, was dressed in a T-shirt, blue jeans and shoes and socks when he made his fatal trek into the desert surrounding this large base. Doctors said the bitter cold was more than the boy could stand and he probably died some time during the early morning hours.

Age Too Much for Hermit in Woods

Muenster, Germany — (UPI)—Engelberg Lehnerts, a 67-year-old hermit who has lived in the woods for nearly 40 years, said today he is getting too old to continue living alone in the wide open spaces.

He asked for a sleeping room in a local hospital where he got a taste of modern comfort as a patient last year. He said he preferred a room without heat.

Driverless Bulldozer Demolishes Apartment

Louisville, Ky. — (UPI)—Mrs. Vaughn Griffin described today how she watched a 20-ton driverless bulldozer roar down on her two-family house and demolish the apartment next door.

It smashed into the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lewis, who were not at home, on Monday. It went through the bedroom, utility room, kitchen and living room, ploughing under furniture, doors and walls.

The giant machine apparently had been started by a group of boys who found it unattended. It left only a Christmas tree standing in the living room.

No Nagging Backache Means a Good Night's Sleep

Nagging backache, headache, or muscular aches and pains may come on with stress, tension, emotional upset, day-to-day stress and strain. And folks who eat and drink unhealthily sometimes suffer mild bladder irritation, which that irritates, uncomfortable feeling, —tending to increase the output of the 15 miles of kidney tubes.

So if nagging backache makes you feel dragged-out, miserable, with restless, sleepless nights, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, get the same happy relief millions have enjoyed for over 60 years. Ask for new, larger, economy size and save money. Get Doan's Pills today!
