Bike License Tag Sales Show Drop

The sale of bicycle license tags to Medford youths this year is far below the number sold at this time last year, city police have announced.

About 419 license tags have been sold for 1957 bicycle riders, police said, compared to 542 sold at this time in 1956.

Licenses are not required on bicycles outside the Medford limits, they said. Officers added bicycle riders from the county using Medford streets must conform to the city ordinance demanding bicycles be licensed.

Police said licensed bicycles are an aid to them in finding lost bicycles as well as traffic violators.

The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez

Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

ADVICE FOR HUSBANDS

In the New Yorker I recently saw a delightful note taken from The Journal-American. The writer said what is so true, that when a man comes home at the end of the day, what he wants most is peace and quiet. But his wife may not want these things. She has been alone all day and perhaps bored — with no one to talk to —so she starts an argument. She wants to be noticed, and not just ignored by the man, who sits there smoking and reading his paper. Hence often she gets more and more annoyed until she bawls him out and starts a fight. She may not be so much sore at him, as just in need of some excitement. She is like the colonel's wife who, before they were to go out to dinner at the general's, came down stairs in her nightgown. "Goodness gracious," said her husband, "What are you doing in that?" "Well," said the wife, "now that you have at last noticed what I am wearing, I'll go up and change!"

Dr Alvarez

According to the writer quoted in the New Yorker, a husband should occasionally change his technic, and on leaving in the morning, should take his wife by both ears, give her a lusty smack on the lips, tweak her nose playfully and say "Goodbye, gorgeous, I will find it hard to wait till I see you again tonight." The editor suggested that the man had better watch out for a flower-pot that might come whizzing past his ear; but my wife says that, when he comes home that night, he is likely to find a much happier and much more loving wife! Research-minded husbands can now run a test to see who is right!

Tenosynovitis

People ask me what tenosynovitis is, and my answer is that the word is made up of three Greek roots which mean a tendon, the oily fluid contained in the sheath of the tendon, and inflammation; in other words, it is an inflammation of the sheath through which a tendon runs. What is it due to? I doubt if anyone is sure as to the cause, but it seems probable that this disease is related to fibrositis and arthritis. The commonest cause of aches in the muscles, tendons, bursas (little sacs which serve as pulleys for tendons) and tissues around joints, is fibrositis, and this is a sort of milder brother of arthritis. It does not produce the deformity and crippling that the worst forms of arthritis produce. The treatment of tenosynovitis is usually hot baths and light massage.

Dr. Alvarez hopes his readers will understand that it would be impossible for him to answer requests for information or to attempt to diagnose by mail.

The Family Council

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual report. The Family Council does not give advice; it merely reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Esther H. —Our friend drinks too much . . . we ought to tell her parents.

Marie D. — It's childish and silly to go squealing.

Esther H.—I wonder what you can do about a person who is on the road toward becoming an alcoholic.

My friend Marie and I are very much worried about a third friend, Helen, who drinks far too much. We are all girls in our early 20's and go out together a lot. We like Helen very much. She is a swell person and very lively and charming, but every time we go out on dates together, she drinks so much the boys are really shocked. She is able to hold her liquor pretty well, but I've noticed she drinks more and more all the time.

Marie and I have spoken to her about it, but she just laughs at us and says we've been reading too much propaganda about alcoholism. Her drinking embarrasses me very much and I feel it gives men the wrong impression about all of us. I think we ought to tell Helen's parents about it, but Marie disagrees.

Marie D.—I think it is childish and silly to go squealing to Helen's parents. She is an adult and has a right to do what she wants—even if it's wrong. In any case, it's not our place to tip off her parents.

There is another problem as well. Helen does not get along well with her parents. She says they have always been very strict and harsh with her and she feels very antagonistic toward them. I'm afraid if we tell her parents, it will trigger a big blowup and Helen will leave home and will be worse off than ever — and we'll be responsible.

I'm also embarrassed by Helen's drinking, but I feel that since we can't do anything about it, we should just keep quiet. As long as we don't drink much and behave ourselves, nobody will get the wrong impression about us. After all, we can't be considered responsible for her actions.

The Council: This is a ticklish question. In another case, alerting the parents to what is going on might be helpful. If Helen really is so antagonistic toward her parents, however, the blowup Marie foresees is a strong possibility.

But Marie carries the hands-off policy a little too far. In spite of the fact that she and Esther are not responsible for Helen's behavior and should not be considered so, people will tend to associate them with her. This is inevitable and it is the reason both girls are embarrassed.

For their sakes and for Helen's, these girls should put their attitudes down on the line. They should tell Helen they find her behavior embarrassing, and let her know they do not want to include her in their activities if she keeps it up. This may help to bring Helen up short. She may change, but if she does not, the girls would do better without her company. It may seem mean but it is the best way. If Helen is becoming an alcoholic, she needs more expert help than her friends can give her.
