Carol Burnett Looks to New Territory In Night Clubs When 'Stanley' Finishes

By WILLIAM EWALD
New York — (U.P.) — Carol Burnett, who got her first big break playing Buddy Hackett's girl friend in "Stanley," will lose her new job in March when the show folds.

But she's already zeroing in on new territory—she's working up a nightclub act and is scheduled for a spot on the Ed Sullivan show this Sunday as a comedienne-singer.

"Actually, I can't help feel anything but gratitude toward the 'Stanley' show," said Carol today. "You know, it's the reverse of the sort of part I usually play — I do slob and sloppily characters and this has given me a chance to do a different kind of thing."

"Another thing is the tremendous experience you get in playing a 'live' show — particularly with someone like Buddy Hackett. He doesn't like to be pinned down by the script, so I have to listen to the sense of what he's saying instead of just waiting for cues.

"Whatever the critics have said about this show, I think there's one big thing to its credit — we're attempting live situation comedy on TV, something no one else is even trying this season."

Helping Hand

Carol, a brunette from San Antonio who was raised in Los Angeles, set out for New York when a benefactor handed her a $1,000 check after watching her do a singing bit at a party.

"I did a scene from 'Annie Get Your Gun' with the fellow who later became my husband, Don Saroyan. Well, this fellow asked Don and me what we wanted to do. We said break into show business in New York. The next day he sent each of us $1,000."

"He gave it to us on three conditions — he was to remain anonymous, we were to consider it a loan to be paid back in three years and we had to promise to help someone ourselves later on."

Carol eventually broke into one of the bigger hostesses in the borscht belt as a singer and comedienne and then served a 13-week stretch on the Paul Winchell TV show. "I played the girl friend to his dummy," she recalled.

This past summer, Carol again clowned and sang on the borscht circuit where Max Liebman, producer of "Stanley," spotted her.

"I remember I was just sitting down to dinner on a Tuesday in October. I got a call asking me to read for Liebman and 'Stanley.' I hate reading, but Buddy Hackett put me right at ease. I got the job on Oct. 22."

Since that time, Carol and Don, a TV director, have been saving their money. "Both of us want to pay back our $1,000 loans. And the way things have been going for me, there's a good chance, I hope, that we'll have it all for him well ahead of schedule."

Backstairs: Animal Life At White House

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press Writer

Washington — (U.P.) — Backstairs at the White House: All sorts of curious animal life is showing up around the White House these days.

Several weeks ago three big cats were roaming the White House grounds. This week, to the amazement of White House police and staff members, two apparently unattached dogs established themselves inside the fenced south grounds of the executive mansion.

One dog is a brown and tan coon-hunting type. The other is black and white spotted animal, apparently having some connection with the Dalmatian breed.

The two dogs were first noticed playing around probably the most sacrosanct golf green in America — Mr. Eisenhower's practice green outside his office.

At one point the two dogs were running up and down the colonnade joining the west wing of the White House and the central part of the residence.

Small mice and some not so small black rats about the size of squirrels have been seen in increasing numbers around the White House grounds, particularly at night.

Increasingly cold weather apparently is sending the mice and rats from their normal burrows in the White House shrubbery toward the executive offices and buildings. Not long ago a courageous and apparently inquisitive rat tried to take a nip at the heel of a White House policeman.

On these cold nights the police stationed around the grounds in sentry booths keep their doors tightly closed to prevent mice from trying to share the warmth of these booths.

The weather may be having its effect, too, on the once-banished White House squirrels. They have been showing up in the driveway leading to the President's office in increasing numbers. Recently one squirrel actually got inside the White House, but was promptly shoosed out.

Some of Mr. Eisenhower's associates at one time thought that the presidential oath of office, to be taken on Sunday, Jan. 20, should be completely private with no television or radio coverage. The theory was that the ceremony would be duplicated the next day in the capitol plaza as the main part of inauguration day hoopla.

Holt En Route to Korea for Children

Washington — (U.P.) — Harry Holt, the Crestwell farmer who has devoted his life to bringing Korean orphans to this country, was headed back to Korea for another group of children today.

Holt said he planned to remain in Korea for about a month but hoped to send children back in the meantime with other escorts.

The deadline for admitting the children to this country was slated to expire with the end of 1956. President Eisenhower has given assurance, however, that the deadline will be extended until the end of January.

Sen. Richard Neuberger said yesterday that he will introduce legislation in Congress this week to set up a five-year program for the admission of orphans to this country. His proposal is that 10,000 additional orphans be admitted to this country for adoption by American parents.

No Decision Reached On Job, Hall Says

Washington — (U.P.) — Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall said Wednesday he has made "no final decision" on whether to keep his job.

Hall said he will discuss his "future plans" with President Eisenhower shortly. He said until he talks with Mr. Eisenhower he will have "no further comment to make."

The statement, released by GOP national committee headquarters, made no reference to published reports that Fred C. Scribner Jr., general counsel of the Treasury Department, has been picked as his successor.

Administration sources refused to speculate on who the new chairman might be. They said, however, that Hall will resign some time after President Eisenhower is sworn in for a second term on Jan. 21.

Bogart Recovering From Throat Surgery

Hollywood — (U.P.) — Actor Humphrey Bogart said today that he "feels fine" in his battle to regain his strength following an operation for throat cancer last winter.

The 56-year-old movie tough guy has recovered sufficiently to receive visitors at his home and sit with his wife, actress Lauren Bacall, for a time in their living room each day. Wednesday night Bogart even sipped a drink while entertaining movie director William Wyler and Mrs. Wyler.

Bogart, however, has been unable to regain the weight he has lost since the operation. He weighs only 115 pounds, 35 pounds under his normal weight.

BLAMES SPIKED EGGNOG
Detroit — (U.P.) — Johnnie Walker, 37, Royal Oak Township, who was sentenced to 20 days Wednesday for drunk driving told the judge: "somebody spiked my eggnog."

GOP to Challenge R. I. Court Ruling

Providence, R. I. — (U.P.) — Republicans planned today to challenge the court decision which reelected Gov. Dennis J. Roberts. They said they would appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Roberts was declared victor in the gubernatorial race when the Rhode Island Supreme Court invalidated absentee and shut-in ballots. These ballots had given the election to Republican Christopher Del Sesto.

The Rhode Island court ruled that a statute enacted in 1953 and signed into law by Roberts which allowed absentee ballots to be cast "on or before" election day was unconstitutional.

William W. Gosling, former town council president of Middletown, said he would take an appeal of the ruling to the U. S. Supreme Court on the ground that the court ruling violated the Constitution's 14th Amendment, dealing with the rights of citizens.

HORSES MAKE COMEBACK
Chicago — (U.P.) — Horse drawn vehicles are making a comeback in Chicago. City Collector William T. Bergdorst said licenses issued to horse cars in 1956 climbed from 72 to 73.
