San Francisco — (U.P.) — The Pacific Coast Conference, apparently ignoring its recent poor Rose Bowl record, voted Thursday to increase the scholastic requirements for athletes.

The conference fathers, composed of presidents, faculty representatives and athletic directors of the nine member schools, voted to require a "C" grade average for athletes and to increase the number of units they must carry in the off-season.

Additionally the representatives at the winter meeting voted unanimously to uphold penalties already levied against four member schools for permitting excessive financial aid to athletes.

However, at the first session of the two-day winter meeting the fathers considered only four points of a new 10-point code proposed by the presidents.

The group approved unanimously a change that called for athletes to maintain a "C" grade average for approximately 28 semester or 42 quarter units between seasons of competition and in 12 units while competing.

The code provision previously did not mention a specified grade average and required only the taking of 24 semester or 36 quarterly units between seasons. The requirement on 12 units during the competitive seasons has not changed.

Ike Chesnut Choice to Spoil Boxer's Debut

Washington — (U.P.) — Ike Chesnut of New York is a 13-5 choice to spoil the United States ring debut of Isidro Martinez, featherweight champion of Panama, in their TV 10-rounder tonight at the Capitol Arena.

The 25-year-old Chesnut has won 23 of his 33 bouts. He fought three draws and lost seven times. He has scored three knockouts. Martinez, 21, has had 27 professional fights and scored 14 of his 24 victories by knockouts. He has lost only three times.

Sugar Ray Files Protest at Officials

New York — (U.P.) — Sugar Ray Robinson filed an official protest today against the officiating at Wednesday night's fight with Gene Fullmer and called a press conference to announce his future plans.

Those plans are expected to include "a $250,000 return title bout" with young Fullmer, who won Ray's middleweight crown on a decision before a sellout 18,134 at Madison Square Garden.

Promoter Jim Norris, who hopes to stage the second Gene-Ray fight at New York or Chicago, said it will draw "between $250,000 and $275,000."

In a long telegram of protest to the N.Y. State Athletic Commission, Ernie Braca — Robinson's co-manager — today accused Referee Ruby Goldstein of letting Fullmer use foul tactics including butting, heeling with the glove laces, wrestling, hitting low and rabbit-punching to the back of the neck.

The commission will be unable to consider the protest until its next meeting, next Friday.

In addition to losing his 160-pound crown, Robinson lost a $42,000 chunk of his $138,190 purse to the U.S. Bureau of Internal Revenue for back income taxes Thursday, one of his handlers disclosed. In addition, Nicholas G. Troilo, an irate Philadelphia promoter, has filed a $75,000 suit against him for alleged breach of contract to fight there.

College All-Stars to Face Pro Gridders in Hula Bowl

By PATRICK J. KILLEN
United Press Sports Writer
Honolulu — (U.P.) — You say you want a team with some power. Then take a backfield with Paul Hornung of Notre Dame, Tommy McDonald of Oklahoma, Jim Swink of TCU and Jon Arnett of Southern California. Add to it a line built around Oklahoma's Jerry Tubbs and there is part of the College All Stars will offer in the 11th annual Hula Bowl game here next Sunday.

This year's classic will feature what probably is the greatest buch of stars ever assembled on one collegiate team. They will play the Hawaii All-Stars, a group of local players augmented by such pros as Norm Van Brocklin, Bob Boyd and Elroy Hirsch of the Los Angeles Rams, Bob Tonniff and Joe Arenas of the San Francisco Forty Niners and Howard Cassady of the Detroit Lions.

College All-Star Coach Bill Wise, dean of Honolulu coaches, has these fortunate problems: Who plays quarterback, Hornung or Stanford's John Brodie? How do you pick two first string guards when Jim Parker of Ohio State, Sam Valentine of Penn State and Donn Carswell of Stanford are on your side?

And for ends, Wise has to choose from Pittsburgh's Joe Walton, Tom Maentz of Michigan, Frank Gilliam of Iowa and Dick Miller of Texas. Paige Cothren of Mississippi is the full-back and Stanford's Paul Wiggins and Bob Hobert of Minnesota make a pair of awesome tackles.

Hirsch will handle the coaching chores for the Hawaii All-Stars, whose ranks include Jim Salsbury of the Detroit Lions, Duane Putnam of the Rams and Johnny Olszewski of the Chicago Cardinals besides a flock of military muscle men.

Last year, the Hawaii team, led by the passing of Y. A. Tittle of the Forty Niners, upended the collegians, 51-29, before about 25,000 fans. All proceeds of the game go to the Shrine and other local charities.

WEIGHT ASSIGNED
Miami, Fla. — (U.P.) — Calumet Farm's Bardstown has been assigned 126 pounds for the $100,000 Widener Handicap at Hialeah on Feb. 23. Needles, last year's Kentucky Derby winner, drew a 124 pound impost while Dedicate was pegged at 123.

WALLS WINS AWARD
Pittsburgh — (U.P.) — Outfielder Lee Walls has won the John L. Hemon Memorial Award as the Pittsburgh Pirates' outstanding rookie for the 1956 season. The award was made by the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

TEAM SETS TOUR
New York — (U.P.) — The national basketball team of Israel, which was forced to withdraw from the Olympic competition because of the hostilities in the Mideast, will open a cross-country tour of the United States with a game at Madison Square Garden Sunday afternoon, Feb. 3.

BOXER ARRIVES FOR BOUT
Portland — (U.P.) — Bob Satterfield, Chicago heavyweight, arrived here by plane last night for his 10-round bout next Tuesday against Dale Hall of Los Angeles. Satterfield is currently ranked eighth among the nation's heavyweights.

JAMES HAS OPERATION
Washington — (U.P.) — Dick James rookie halfback with the Washington Redskins, underwent a knee operation here yesterday. James, former University of Oregon star, suffered a cartilage injury last season.

Lakers Fail To Escape League Cellar

By UNITED PRESS
A last minute basket by George Yardley of the Fort Wayne Pistons proved the stumbling block for the Minneapolis Lakers' efforts to escape the Western Division cellar in the National Basketball Assn.

The Lakers, who could have vacated the basement with a victory at Fort Wayne Thursday night, led by as much as 19 points during the second quarter but blew that margin by the end of the third quarter. With 25 seconds remaining, the blond, balding Yardley scored from underneath the basket to give Fort Wayne a 104-102 victory.

Yardley had 33 points to lead the Pistons and Bob Houbregs added 22, while Clyde Lovellette tallied 24 for the Lakers.

In other games Thursday night, the New York Knickerbockers successfully defended third place in the East against the Syracuse Nationals, 126-111, and the Philadelphia Warriors rallied to nip St. Louis, 82-81, in a twin bill at Madison Square Garden.

LC Rated for Hoop Crown

Portland — (U.P.) — The Northwest Conference kicks off its 1957 basketball campaign this week end with Lewis and Clark rating the edge as the biggest title threat in the loop.

Defending champion College of Idaho, without the services of talented R. C. Owens, appears to be down considerably this year and last year's two runners-up, Linfield and Pacific, have lacked consistent scoring ability in pre-season tilts.

Lewis and Clark, 6-4 for the pre-season schedule, lacks only one man from last year's club.

Also receiving mention as a possible contender is Willamette, fifth in the six-team field a year ago and 5-3 so far this year. The Bearcats boast a veteran lineup like the Pioneers.

Pacific, 2-6, this far in the year, got the first chance to knock off the Pioneers. They meet in a league opener Saturday. The rest of the field waits until the following Friday before risking a counting loss.

Linfield holds a 5-4 mark to date, better than College of Idaho's humble 2-6 or Whitman's 2-4 effort thus far into the season.

Is That So?

Editor's Note: Upon two preceding Fridays, Eugene Burns presented Dr. Irving Bengelsdorf's copyrighted article in The Saturday Review on the effects of H-bombs on weather. Today, he reports the reaction of three West Coast scientists to these articles.

"Maybe—but we don't think so!" was the reaction of three scientists to Dr. Irving Bengelsdorf's suggestion that radioactive fallout of nuclear explosions possibly may be accenting the severity of our weather.

Arnold Court, University of California lecturer in geography, went to some length to point out that the weather of the past decade has not been so "unusual."

"Last winter's extreme rains in northern California, to which Dr. Bengelsdorf alludes, do not fall outside the range of extreme variations we've had in the past."

Referring to early meteorological records, Court said: "Long before there was any H-bomb fallout, floods in these same areas were so bad in 1861 that one could sail a boat from Sacramento to Madera over the Central valley. Much worse than last winter's floods."

"And speaking of weather reversals (which Dr. Bengelsdorf did) old timers refer to the year 1816 as the year without a summer."

"So, on the basis of unseasonable weather and weather reversals, I would object to Dr. Bengelsdorf's fundamental premise."

However, Court admitted: "Dr. Bengelsdorf's basic point is sound in saying that the explosions of H-bombs with their radioactive fallout might possibly have an effect. But who knows?"

"Certainly it is true that we live in a universe which is in delicate balance," he stated. "A slight change in some factors may cause other changes."

Carbon Dioxide
"For example, the burning of coal and oil has increased the amount of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere by two or three times. And man has done other things to increase or decrease certain natural factors: he has deforested some areas and planted others. He has drained lakes and swamps and dammed waters and created new lakes."

"If a fly lights on a cable of the Golden Gate bridge the bridge will sag ever so slightly, whether it's measurable or not. And so, I'd say, the real question is whether the effects of the H-bomb are as great in influencing the weather as is claimed by Dr. Bengelsdorf."

Two Stanford university scientists, Dr. W. A. Perkins of the Aerosol laboratory of the Stanford Chemistry department, and F. S. Duckworth, chairman of the Northern California branch

Professional Golf Czar Intends to Raise Prestige and Earnings of Pros

By HAL WOOD
Los Angeles — (U.P.) — Edwin Ed Carter, the fast-talking new "czar" of the touring professional golfers, is a man with a mission.

He wants to:
1. Raise the prestige and responsibility of professional golfers.
2. Increase the golfers' earnings to the maximum.

Carter, who has an independent income after selling a string of newspapers, took the job after getting his first taste of big-time golf management in 1954.

"I saw there were great opportunities for a business man in the professional golfing set-up," he says. "I was handling the program as a member of our Baltusrol club for the National Open in 1954 and I became interested. I noticed that there were a lot of loop-holes in the way things were handled that could have been improved with an experienced businessman at the helm."

It was only a few months ago that Carter was appointed the PGA tournament bureau chief. Then the other night he presented a program of strict supervision for the professionals to follow. They liked it so much that they agreed to give him czar-like powers to enforce it. The program called for a schedule of fines, including $100 for breaking a golf club in anger, $500 for failure of a player to defend his championship, etc.

"They gave me the power to enforce the fines and told me I can ban any one not paying the fines," says Carter, "so I guess they like the idea."

"Some of the people think we may be taking the color out of the golf game by fining fellows for breaking clubs or swearing. But there always will be color in golf."

Plenty of Color
"Sam Snead doesn't have to do anything like that to have color. And there are a lot of youngsters coming along who have loads of

Lions' Buddy Parker Is Named '56 Coach of Year

New York — (U.P.) — Buddy Parker, whose Detroit Lions finished second last season after winding up last in 1955, today was named National Football League "Coach of the Year" in the annual United Press poll.

Parker, whose Lions lost the Western Division title to the Chicago Bears by a half-game, received nine votes in balloting by 25 sports writers who covered the 1956 campaign in the various league cities.

Jim Lee Howell, who guided the New York Giants to their first Eastern Division title in 10 years and their first league championship in 18, was runner-up with six votes.

Joe Kuharich, who kept the Washington Redskins in the Eastern race until the final week of the season, was third in the voting with five ballots.

Ray Richards of the Chicago Cardinals drew four votes and the other went to Paddy Driscoll, who guided the Chicago Bears to the Western Division crown in his first season as the team's head coach.

The Lions compiled a 9-3 record last season after finishing last in 1955 with a 3-9 mark.

After the poor 1955 season, which followed the 56-10 thumping Detroit took from the Cleveland Browns in the 1954 championship game, many observers picked Parker's club to finish in the cellar again in 1956.

But the 1956 Lions, relying on the defensive strength that has made Parker one of pro football's most successful coaches, were in the thick of the West-of the American Meteorological society, pointed out that Dr. Bengelsdorf's article states that his discussion was "frankly speculative" . . . "but unfortunately," they added, "the articles give the impression that there is a reasonable probability that a relationship exists between unusual weather phenomena and nuclear explosions . . ."

Then they stated that they are in agreement with a report from a group of meteorologists assigned by the National Academy of Science to study this problem and this report concluded with the statement:

"Although it is impossible to prove that nuclear explosions have or have not influenced the weather, it is believed that such an effect is unlikely."

it. Young Ken Venturi from San Francisco, who just turned professional, is an example of a lad with a lot of color. He might be a big winner right from the moment he joins the tour."

Carter wants to handle the PGA tour as if it were a big business corporation — which it is. The men will play for $1-150,000 in 1957—the biggest pot in history.

"We are in the entertainment business, with the added attraction of competition," says Carter. "We must use showmanship. And with the double offering, we should have the best business in the world."
