

Portland High School Students Told Laws Will Now Be Enforced

Portland —(U.P.)— A Portland high school principal said today that he is ready to enforce the law on his 1700 students and threatened expulsion or suspension for those not ready to conform.

Dr. Leon P. Minear, principal of Benson Boys Polytechnic High School, announced before a student assembly that the duck tail hair cut, the Elvis Presley sideburns, outlandish attire, erratic driving, and smoking will no longer be tolerated.

Expulsion Threatened
In a move tailored to fit Portland's campaign to stamp out juvenile crime, Dr. Minear told the student body that those who do not agree with his program face expulsion.

He said "I told them we would allow no fancy haircuts at the beginning of the new semester." He commented that "employers normally take one look at a duck-tail haircut or an Elvis Presley sideburn and reject the student from any consideration."

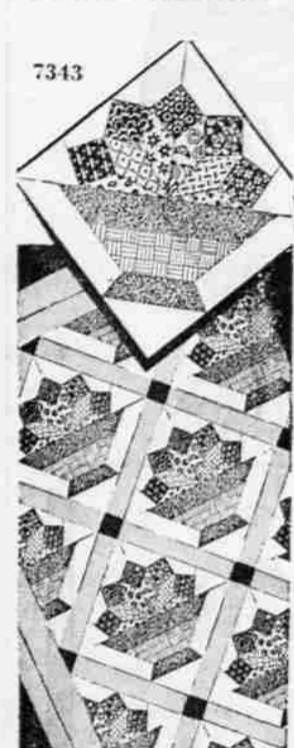

Dr. Minear was given the full support of the city school administration.

He threatened loss of driver's licenses for students who "squirrel" their cars and announced a ban on profanity which he said showed a weakness of vocabulary and moral character.

Tobacco Banned
Regarding smoking by high school students Dr. Minear said "if a student is found to be in possession of tobacco he will face suspension."

He recalled that for years there had been a truce between school authorities and students so long as there was no smoking at school. "No more," he said. "Even in the cases where parents have given the kids permission—they haven't the authority to give them permission to break the law—we will rule out tobacco."

Neuberger Offers Klamath Indian Bill

Washington —(U.P.)— Urging that more time is needed for "orderly" disposal of timber belonging to the Klamath Indians in Oregon, Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore.) yesterday introduced a bill to extend federal supervision over the reservation.

The bill called for an 18-month delay in proposed termination of federal supervision over the tribe.

The present reservation includes about 600,000 acres of pine timber worth about $80 million.

Neuberger contended that the tribe should not be "cut hastily adrift," and that more time was needed for "orderly and sound disposal of the timber that it 'not be sold recklessly on the auction block.'"

Agency Pooling To Cut Delinquency Eyed

Portland —(U.P.)— Judge Donald E. Long of the city's court of Domestic Relations yesterday called for a pooling of Portland's youth agencies to determine what can be done to curb juvenile delinquency but warned there is no quick and easy solution to the problem.

The judge's remarks came at a session of court, police and school officials in Mayor Terry D. Schrunk's office. The new mayor had called the meeting to seek recommendations for a program designed to curb juvenile delinquency.

Judge Long took exception to several suggested ways to help bring the delinquency under control. No benefit was seen by the judge for the use of teen-age offenders names in newspapers.
