Elizabeth Gordon

A lovely lady who is a VIFL (Very Important Friend of Lumber) is this month presenting the 60th anniversary issue of the magazine she has edited since 1941 — "House Beautiful," by name. She is Elizabeth Gordon, author of the long-time best seller, "More House for Your Money," and of a syndicated column on the building and making of homes since 1934. Miss Gordon's work has been rich in good things done for lumber from these parts. Every logger and sawmill man in the Douglas fir region owes her a cheer.

Take this January number of the lady's magazine. Its 60th anniversary theme, is "Guide to a fuller, fairer future—America's new tradition." In homes, that is.

Its finest feature—pages 54-59 and running over—is entitled, "Recognizing Our Own Architectural Traditions."

The house that illustrates the theme was built in Pasadena in 1907, from a design by the famous brothers of the time, Charles Sumner Greene and Henry Mather Greene — architects of New England ancestry, beyond any doubt.

"The most notable aspect of the design," says Miss Gordon's writer," is the way the whole design derives from the exposing of the structure — exposed wooden beams, exposed framing . . . This practice has become one of the most frequent characteristics of the modern American style . . ."

Tree of Life

The photographic illustrations, mostly in magnificent color, reveal a house that is a picture gallery of West Coast woods, in ceiling beams, massive doors, paneled partitions — with great lengths of library shelves—vast stairways and seeming acres of floors. Even the glass panels of the entrance doors project a "Tree of Life" design by Louis Tiffany—"a theme which runs through the entire house in the carvings, original rugs, (still to be seen in the living room), furniture, lamps and ceramics."

Another article, "Newcomers to Our American Tradition," pictures details of a home of today, a rambler designed by Architect John Lord King for the famous illustrator, John Falter. Its many photographs blend handsomely with those of the Greene masterpiece of 1907—the Gamble home in Pasadena. They also show that mighty Douglas fir beams and stout posts and planks are as available in the nation's lumber yards of today as in those of 50 years ago.

In Architect King's plan for the Falter house—on a hillside site—a long, broad court of easy-to-walk-on planks levels off from the car shelter to the entry door. And everywhere else in the Falter home—outdoors and indoors, with roof deck and beams exposed, in walls, floors, library shelves, kitchen cabinets, overhangs, walks, fences — the expanses of lumber in use are simply tremendous.

"A Square Is Not a Box . . ."

Another story that is told in detail and informatively pictured is a beauty for the family with a modest budget and an everyday lot to build on.

The originality of this house has to be seen in photographs, plan drawings and descriptions to be appreciated. Adapting the squares of basic economy design and construction to diagonal patterns of the rooms of the first floor, a spiral stairway to a "mezzanine," with the latter extended outdoors as passage to a "guest room" at a rear corner of the lot. Architect Alfred Browning Parker has created an original economy home for the future.

And this house is not only something vitally fresh and new in plan and idea, but it calls for lumber, in many grades and sizes, all the way through.

Miss Gordon, thank you, ma'am, from all of us of the West Coast woods and mills.

Silver in X-Ray Negatives 'Panned'

Harrisburg, Pa. — (U.P.) — The state has come up with an idea which may be one of the last words in economy—a plan to "pan" the silver in the solution used in developing X-ray negatives.

According to a statement from the Department of Property and supplies, the processing solution formerly has been poured down the drain. But by merely adding zinc powder the soluble silver is precipitated out of the solution and "panned" in much the same manner made famous by gold hunters in the Klondike.

Fifty pounds of zinc powder, costing $10, will net from $800 to $1,500 of the "noble metal," the department says. And the scheme may bring a profit of about $25,000 a year.

CAT BANQUET

Boston—(U.P.)—More than 50 pedigreed cats were feted at a hotel banquet prior to the Boston Club's annual show. The center piece consisted of a 100-pound block of ice with a freshly-caught haddock encased in the middle. The menu consisted of cake, soup, all-fish canned cat food, homogenized milk and, for dessert, catnip.

How This Newspaper Helps Advertisers...

With a Strong Right Hand

We're newspaper people, with our ears to the ground and strength in our right hand.

For a long time it has been our job to meet the people of our area—in their homes, work, schools, churches, and in their civic and social activities. It has been our job to understand their needs and desires; to report their joys and sorrows.

Few know this area and its people better than we.

Many merchants look to this background of experience and understanding for assistance in reaching their audience most effectively. It is an unusually strong right hand to their merchandising efforts—an effective source for information and advice.

Let us show you how the combination of this experience and audited circulation facts* can help you to get maximum results from your sales messages. Call us this week.
