Is That So?

Did you know that... the domestic honeybee was brought to America from Europe by 17th century colonists and many wild honeybees now found in the U.S. are descendants of early imports.

The chinook salmon, or king, may attain a weight of 125 pounds.

The flying fox, largest of bats, with a wingspread of five feet, feeds mostly on fruits. This Asian bat supplements its diet with small fish, catching them with its feet while hovering over the water.

In general, squirrels go up trees at a gallop, the fore and hind feet being used in pairs alternately. Coming down, they travel head first and are much more careful as they move, setting their feet individually.

The common European cricket, made famous by Dicken's Christmas tale, The Cricket on the Hearth, has immigrated to America. They are often found in apartment buildings in larger cities where long into winter months they will regale inhabitants with their song. When it confines itself to singing, well and good—but alas, it has the ugly habit of chewing holes into its host's clothes.

The sea lamprey, which attaches itself to other fish with a sucker-like mouth, is among the most primitive of fish. Although called a sea lamprey, it can remain in fresh water all its life as has happened, unfortunately, with the descendants of those that found their way through the Welland Canal into the Great Lakes and have now practically wiped out the lake trout and the white fish from some of the lakes.

Bats are the only mammals that have real wings and are capable of true flight. On occasion, gray squirrels have been known to tangle their tails. Unable to separate them and escape, the animals may starve to death. Such an unusual occurrence happened at the New York Zoological Park in December, 1951. The keeper discovered seven of them huddled together with their bodies extended in all directions but bound together by their interwoven tails. So twisted and intertwined was the hair on the tails that it had to be cut away in order to free the animals. All were adult; two females were dead and another soon died; four recovered and were released.

Black widow spiders are not nearly as dangerous as they are cracked up to be. As a rule they are too small to inject enough poison into a person to make him seriously ill—providing he is healthy to begin with. The name, originally applied to the female, refers to her practice of eating the male although the young also devour one another. However, these habits are shared by most other spiders. If bitten, try to make the wound bleed as much as possible. Located All Over World The famous rainbow trout, a landlocked steelhead really originally occurred only on the West Coast of the U.S., from southern California to southeastern Alaska. Thanks to the shipability of the eggs—keep them cold and moist and free from jarring and they will stay alive for many weeks, developing slowly—this gamy fish is now located all over the world and is at present found throughout the northern U.S. and Canada, in Europe, including the British Isles, Argentina, Chile, Venezuela, South Africa, East Africa,

Non-Violence Policy Adopted by Negroes

Montgomery, Ala. — (U.P.) — Negro leaders of the Deep South's bus integration movement have embarked on a Gandhi-like non-violence policy which they hope will "shame" white extremists who dynamited churches and homes in Montgomery.

The Rev. Martin Luther King, leader of the Montgomery movement, declared the policy Monday night at a mass meeting of Negroes and then collapsed and had to be helped to his seat.

"If anyone is killed, let it be me," King said in an emotion-charged prayer.

About 500 Negroes attending the rally acclaimed King's leadership with a deafening outburst of shouting and weeping that lasted 15 minutes.

King said segregationist extremists would have to dynamite 50,000 homes—not just two—to dissuade them from their cause.

Portland Woman Killed in Collision

Gates, Ore. — (U.P.) — Mrs. Ma netta Voshell, 48, Portland, was killed late yesterday in a two-car collision about six miles east of here on the snow-covered North Santiam highway.

State police said cars driven by Mrs. Voshell's husband, William, and Milton Shumway, 53, Bend, collided.

Voshell suffered head lacerations and an 18-year-old daughter, Jeanette, a possible jaw fracture. Shumway and three passengers suffered minor injuries. The injured were taken to Santiam Memorial hospital in Stayton.

Mail Card Return Urged by Chairman

A plea to Jackson county residents to return March of Dimes cards with contributions was voiced today by Dick Knight, Medford chairman of the polio fund campaign. The cards were mailed shortly after Jan. 2.

"The job of fighting polio is not yet over," Knight said. "We can only accomplish the tasks remaining to us if we raise sufficient funds. We are asking everyone to send in his contribution now."

The goal of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, whose research led to the discovery of the Salk anti-polio vaccine, is $46,900,000.

The March of Dimes has earmarked $10,000,000 to supply vaccine to those unable to pay for it. Knight pointed out that there are 64,000,000 Americans in the polio-susceptible age range (up to 40) who have not yet been inoculated.

The balance of the funds is needed for the care of 80,000 polio victims, research and public education.

JOURNAL BLAMED

Bellefontaine, Ohio — (U.P.) — The New York Central Railroad said today a defective journal caused the derailment Tuesday night of eight cars of a 58-car Sharonville, Pa., to Bellefontaine freight train.
