Odd Combinations Featured in New Resort Clothing

Designers of cotton sports separates this year like the "sophisticated paradox" for resort wear. Some like classic country clothes worked out in high-style prints. Others combine gossamer, feminine tops with heavy denim or sailcloth skirts and pants, reports the National Cotton Council.
 Floral-printed sailcloth in a tapestry design is used for long and short versions of slim "corny" pants with bibs cut like blazer and Bermuda shorts. For contrast, grassy green cotton broadcloth "work" shirts are worn with cornies, blending sophisticated with practicality.
 Big news on the patio or roundabout a beach house are the cotton sheers, seen most importantly in the chiffon blouse. One designer shows a sunbound blouse with its bodice gathered onto a yoke at a round collar-neckline. It is worn with "gondola-pole" red, white and blue striped cotton shorts or skirts.
 Black lace-trimmed cotton shorts and skirts.
 Black lace-trimmed cotton broadcloth, ruffled shirts, in both long-sleeved and sleeveless versions, are combined with gondola stripes in tomato red and white tapered duck pants with turned-up cuffs.

Hearty Breakfast Starts Day Right

Having trouble getting the family up these cold mornings? After the gay round of holiday festivities and the luxury of sleeping late, it is hard to get the family back on schedule. One of the best wake-ups we know of to remedy this situation is to have a hearty appetizing breakfast ready when Dad and the children gather round the table. The savory fragrance of frying bacon or spicy coffee cake wafting from the kitchen through the house will do more to rouse sleepyheads than the most urgent shaking.

With a little planning and forethought breakfast can be changed from a monotonous task to a cheerful, pleasant, "look-forward-to" time of day. Setting the table the night before, planning the menu, measuring and sifting the ingredients, all make for quicker, smoother preparation the next morning.

Breakfast is an important meal, nutritionally speaking. It should supply one-third of the day's food requirements as well as prepare the body for the day's activities.

A word about milk for breakfast. Children need a glass of milk at breakfast and should always have one. But adults, too, need at least two full glasses of milk a day. Drinking a glass of milk at breakfast not only adds substance and satisfaction to the meal but aids in the body's assimilation of all protein foods eaten during the day.

A perennial favorite salad is raw cranberry relish molded in a ring and centered with spiced canned cling peaches. Either fix your own spiced peaches with a can of cling halves or use some of the canned whole spiced peaches.
 Steam some of the largest prunes you can find until soft. Slit down one side and remove pit. Fill each prune with a whole unblanched almond and dip in melted, cooled sweet chocolate. A most delicious sweet for a candy bowl.

Bureau Publishes New Pamphlet on Retarded Child

Some practical suggestions to parents of children who are mentally retarded are contained in a new pamphlet, "The Child Who Is Mentally Retarded," just released by the Children's Bureau, U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Out of each 1,000 of the population, 30 are mentally retarded, the pamphlet states. Of these, 25 are "educable," and 4 "trainable," and one is totally dependent. The publication emphasizes that although some kinds of retardation are inherited through the parents' genes, this doesn't necessarily mean that retardation "runs in the family."

"A retarded child or an extremely bright child can be born to almost any parents," it states. The pamphlet emphasizes the value of a thorough diagnostic evaluation of a child who appears to be mentally retarded to determine how much he can be expected to develop and how parents can start to plan for the child. It also outlines some of the factors which parents would want to consider in deciding either to keep the child at home or to place him away from home.

It sets forth some of the home training which parents can give a retarded child and lays particular stress on the fact that retarded children have the same feelings as other children and that most are as sensitive as any other child.

"The Child Who Is Mentally Retarded" also describes some of the community agencies and national groups to which parents may turn for help with their individual problems.

The pamphlet points out that it is naturally difficult for some parents to accept the fact that there is no known cure for many causes of mental retardation. It tells parents "you can help your child more if you do accept the fact that there is no cure. Then you can make plans for him that are based on what he is really like instead of what you would like him to be."

The pamphlet is available from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing office, Washington, D.C., at 10 cents a copy.

Rainiers Betting Heir Will Be Boy Shopping Shows

By GAY PAULEY
 New York (UPI)—This week in Manhattan:
 From the shopping Princess Grace did in America, the Rainiers of Monaco are betting on a boy.
 Many of the basics for the baby are blue. A New York store Saks Fifth Avenue revealed that the Philadelphia-born princess purchased a layette and other nursery items from its infant's department before she sailed for home.
 Purchases included a white enamelled chip carrying basket lined with pale blue cotton, and trimmed with a scalloped band of white embroidery. She bought pale blue wash cloths, face and bath towels, and a receiving square in blue and white checked flannel with blue binding.
 But coat hangers for the nursery were covered in blue satin on one side, pink on the other.
 In the "I told you so" department.
 Sportswear manufacturer Jack Baker of New York feels smug about the cold and snow the weatherman weighed on much of the nation last week.
 Same was forecast in the fashion industry's first weather map, one which Baker late last fall asked private forecasters to compile. He mailed copies to store buyers across the country. Baker explained that sales of wool skirts, which he manufactures, depend heavily on the weather.
 "Sales are booming," he reported happily.

Two lovely teen-aged girls flew to Rome this week for three months of study of Italy's fashion industry. The two, Nancy Staluppi and Rose Marie Amersso, both 17, are the first winners of fashion scholarships, co-sponsored by the Fontana Sisters, designers, and Pan-American World Airways. Both are seniors in New York's High School of Fashion Industries, and plan careers as high-fashion designers.

The annual "March of Dimes" fashion show each year inspires the designers to create the extraordinary. This year is no exception. At the January 29 event, Maurice Renter will feature a full-length evening sheath made entirely of gold-plated beads. Price, $5,000.

The designer also will show a full-skirted, white chiffon dress with underskirt of natural Russian sable.
 "New version of long Johns," a Renter spokesman explained.
