Directors Re-elected By Loan Association

H. J. Field of Norfield Shoe company, Medford, and E. H. Singmaster of Singmaster and Jones Insurance agency, Ashland, were re-elected directors of the Jackson County Federal Savings and Loan association at the annual membership meeting last week.

J. H. Pletsch, secretary of the association, reported $296,873.40 had been paid in dividends during 1956. This was equivalent to an industry employing 59 workers earning $5,000 per year, he said.

The secretary also reported the association had made 663 mortgage loans during 1956, totaling more than $3,000,000. This resulted in an increase in mortgage loans for 1956 of $1,419,657.61. He stated the savings had also increased $1,165,453.97 during the year, making it possible for the association to increase the number of loans for home purchases.

During an organizational meeting of the directors after the membership meeting, W. J. Warner was re-elected president; H. J. Field, vice president; Glenn O. Taylor, vice president; J. H. Pletsch, secretary-treasurer; H. K. Hamilton Jr., first assistant secretary, and Paul G. Antony, second assistant secretary.

The word "seasoning of wood" now means its proper drying. But at one time it referred to the proper seasoning of the year for felling and hewing the wood. The drying of wood, so old almanacs say, is more properly accomplished when it is worked upon during the right "moon" or "season of the month."

What's become of our scarecrows, certainly a part of our rural scene, just like the weather-vane. As for weather-vanes, the first ones were made of cloth. In fact, the word "vane" comes from the Anglo-Saxon word "vano," flag and the earliest windvanes were known as "winde-ano" or wind-flags. states Eric Sloan's Almanac and Weather Forecaster (Duell, Sloan, & Pearce, N.Y.).

First weather-vanes made in America were made of very light and dry white pine in the form of arrows, hands and fish. Cocks and horses did not show up until metal vane appeared.

The first windows in America were rare and expensive. They were small and the movable property of every house owner. When you moved, you took your windows along with you.

Irish Extremists Blow Up Barracks

Dungannon, Northern Ireland

—(U.P.)— Irish extremists warned British troops away from a new barracks Friday night, snatched two playing children from the building and then blew it up, police said Saturday.

Documents captured earlier from leaders of the outlawed Irish Republican Army in Dublin listed the barracks as one of the prime targets in the IRA's campaign against Northern Ireland installations.

The raiding party of at least six men escaped after what police called the "most daring raid" in recent weeks, Dungannon is 12 miles from the Irish Republic border.

Attempts to Rescue Man From Shark Fails

Manila — (U.P.) — An unidentified man was devoured by sharks off the U.S. Navy's Sangley Point base Saturday while American sailors raced to the scene in a vain effort to save him.

The watch officer on an American ship saw the man struggling in the water about half a mile away and sent a boat to help him. But the boat arrived too late to save the man.
