Around Hollywood

Hollywood—(U.P.)—Jim Backus lifted his eyes Heavenward and sighed that a near-sighted, bumbling old man has become an "albator" around his neck.

There are times when Backus wishes he never had heard of the old man, Mr. MacGoo.

Since Backus began doing the voice of that cartoon character, he has won more public notice than in all his years as a radio comic and film actor.

Lowest Moment Recalled

His lowest moment, he shuddered, was at a Christmas party. "Someone says, 'Zanuck would like to say a word.' I get all excited. A big studio executive! Maybe a role in 'Island in the Sun.' But the man says, 'Do me a favor. Do MacGoo.'"

"During the filming of 'The Great Man' the cops who take tourists around the set would bring them over and say, 'Do MacGoo.' You feel like such an idiot.

"Then there are the kids on the street who imitate MacGoo. And parties are impossible! There's always the man who puts the lampshade on his head. You know he'll start talking like MacGoo."

Alligator Available; Apply at Norfolk, Va.

Norfolk, Va.—(U.P.)—The Norfolk Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals had a tough one today: To find a home for a 70-pound four-and-a-half foot alligator.

Not even the zoo will take him.

Four teen-agers dug the cold-blooded beast out of a muskrat hole in City Park Tuesday.

"We were digging about three feet down in that hole when we saw his tail wagging," 14-year-old Bob Joynt said excitedly, "and I jumped out of that hole."

The Arbuckle mountains in Oklahoma are said by geologists to be the oldest mountain formation in the U.S.

ALCOHOLIC ADDRESS

Batesville, Ark.—(U.P.)—Postmen Wednesday deciphered the name in the address of a letter although it was written in unique terms. They remembered that the name portion of the address "C2HSOH, Batesville, Ark." is the chemical formula for alcohol. They delivered the letter to Alkie Hall, 36, a Batesville grocer.
