HILTS Pupils Visit Post Office

By MRS. M. F. CAVIN

Hilts — The second and third grade pupils and their teacher Mrs. Lewis Wesner were transported to Ashland on Friday, where postmaster Parker Hess showed them through the post-office, explaining the different steps in preparing the mail for its destinations.

The pupils have been studying letter writing and were interested in learning what happened to letters after they were mailed.

After their tour, they all had their lunch in Lithia park, where they also visited the zoo. Cars were provided for the trip by Mrs. Lewis Wesner, Mrs. Lester Chase and Mrs. Al Simmen.

Mrs. Warren Fox entertained a group of young friends on Monday evening Jan. 14, at her home, in honor of her daughter Pat's 11th birthday.

Various games were played and refreshments of ice cream, cake, and punch were served to Larry Black, Bill Green, Gary Tallis, Tommy Shuck, Marsha Simmen, Marilyn Thompson, Lee Roy Green, Terry Oakley, Karen Bryan, Janet Benson, and Pamela Mendes.

Unable to attend but sending a gift was Marcia Kay Cavin. Mr. and Mrs. Larry Rohl of Copco were recent guests at the H. G. Thompson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernie De Avilla and children of Yreka visited Sunday at the Don Wilcox home.

A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs. Francis Gwinn for Mr. and Mrs. Don Wilcox and family, who recently lost their home and household belongings in a fire. Those attending were, Mrs. Harvey Frye, Mrs. Itala Marin, Mrs. Marshino Marin, Mrs. Adolph Zanotto, Mrs. Ernie De Avilla of Yreka and the guest of honor Mrs. Don Wilcox.

Many friends of the Wilcox's, who were unable to attend sent gifts, helping the young couple to establish a home again.

Mr. and Mrs. Pat Putman and son of Monterey visited at the John Nunes home last week.

Approximately 24 children and adults attended the Sunday school party held at the club house Saturday night. Games were played and cookies and punch were served.

Several friends met at the home of Mrs. Henry De Clerck on the afternoon of Jan. 16 in honor of her birthday. Present were Mrs. Vic Van De Weghe, Mrs. Dick Williams, Mrs. Grady Bonner, and Mrs. M. M. Seif.

The Contract Bridge club met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William Wiley on highway 99. Birthday cake and coffee were served, honoring the birthday of Mrs. M. G. King, who was presented with a gift from the group.

The weekend storm deposited 16 inches of snow here, causing the temperature to drop to zero. Mr. and Mrs. Roger Ceccatto are the parents of an eight pound son, born on Tuesday morning at the Ashland hospital.

Shopping Saturday in Medford were Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Eastman and daughter Paula, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Graves, Mr. and Mrs. Adamor De Clerck and daughters Barbara and Coleen.

A dinner guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Al Simmen Thursday evening was Doug Whittaker of Susanville, who is replacing Al Powers who recently resigned as superintendent of the logging operations.

Mrs. Donovan Ward called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Baumgardner in Yreka on Wednesday.

The Rev. and Mrs. Howard Simmonds of Butte Falls called on friends here Friday.

Dean Wilcox of Ashland called at the Don Wilcox home on Sunday.

The January meeting of the PTA was held Thursday night with Girl Scout Troop 1 presenting two short skits after the business meeting. They were "How Much" presented by Marsha Simmen, Gayel Ward and Jeri Lynn Green. "The Medicine Man" by Marilyn Thompson, and Lee Roy Green.

Report cards were distributed to students of the Hilts school on Thursday.

The Family Council

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual report. The Family Council does not give advice; it merely reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Mr. A. W.—I don't trust our daughter. Mrs. A. W.—It can't happen again.

Mr. A. W.—My wife and I recently had a terrible shock. We learned that an elderly man who lived in our apartment building had been molesting our 12-year-old daughter and that this had been going on for some time. He gave our daughter money and little gifts.

I wanted to report it to the police at once, but my wife said that it would get our daughter into terrible trouble and she would be taken away. I threatened this man and forced him to move away from our neighborhood.

Now I am worried about our daughter. I feel that she has been corrupted and this can happen again. She was severely punished and has promised never again to do such a thing, but I don't trust her. I feel that my wife has made a big mistake in not reporting this and possibly our daughter would be better off if she were placed in a home for a time, where she would be under constant supervision.

Mrs. A. W.—I have heard that in such cases it is best to minimize the whole thing as much as possible. I did not want our daughter to have to be questioned by the police and juvenile authorities and have to repeat the story many times. According to what I heard, this builds the event up in the child's mind and makes it an even worse experience.

I feel that our daughter has taken the whole thing very hard and that she fully realizes the seriousness of what she has done. I cannot conceive of its ever happening again. Our daughter is a good child. She didn't quite understand what was happening at first and later was too scared to know what to do about it.

My husband has been working himself up to a crazy pitch about this thing and I've come to feel that he blames our daughter and wants her out of the house. I would never give up my child to an institution.

The Council: These parents not only avoided their responsibility as citizens, but cooperated with a criminal in evading punishment by not reporting this man to the police. He is now free to repeat his criminal act against other children. Police and juvenile authorities are well aware of the problems of questioning children on such events and are trained to do it as tactfully as possible. This girl would not be placed in an institution if it was learned that her parents are responsible persons and provide a satisfactory home.

Although the opinion Mrs. A. W. heard has been expressed from time to time, there is much to be said for the opposite point of view — that repressing and hiding such an event may make it a more serious sore spot in the child's background. A serious wrong has been done here and the parents should have availed themselves of the opportunity to give vent to the feelings that are now plaguing this father. The girl herself might become more cleansed of the experience through a more thorough exposure.

Since it is probably too late to rectify this situation, and since it would be neither beneficial nor practical to place this girl outside her own home, Mr. A. W. should try to put this idea out of his mind and see that the girl is closely supervised from her own home.

Suspicious prying should be avoided as much as possible and, instead, her parents should watch to see that she has many activities that really interest her as well as wholesome relationships with girls and boys her own age and an active interest in school and church. If she shows signs of unhappiness or delinquency, they would do well to consult with a social worker attached to a family agency.

Protests Mount Over Tito Visit

Washington — (U.P.) — Protests against the impending state visit of Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia mounted Saturday, with no signs from the state department the invitation will be withdrawn.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin (D-N. C.) and four house members, including Democratic leader John W. McCormack (Mass.) lodged new complaints.

Ervin said he was opposed "because no good can be served." The house members drew up a bi-partisan petition, to be circulated starting Monday asking President Eisenhower to cancel the invitation.

Secret Police Force Reported in Hungary

London — (U.P.) — A hastily-reorganized secret police force, some 10,000 strong was reported Saturday to have gone into action in Hungary in a ruthless purge of government opponents. Diplomatic reports from behind the Iron Curtain said that to all appearances Hungary's Soviet-backed regime has ordered a get-tough policy against the "enemies" of communism. Diseases cause less loss in flax than in any other crop commonly grown in the United States.

EAGLE POINT School District To Vote

By LOUISE M. BERG

Eagle Point—The Eagle Point High school gym will be the polling place for a special election Thursday, Jan. 31, for the purpose of voting on the removal of Eagle Point school district 9 from the Jackson county district. Ballots can be cast between 2 and 8 p.m.

Because the last school district census taken on October 25, 1956, exceeded 1,000, Eagle Point School District will become a first class district as of July 1, 1957. Under the law from the Jackson County Rural School District and from the jurisdiction of the Rural School board, under which the school has been operating as a second class school district.

Such a removal will mean that the Eagle Point schools would operate independently as a first class district and the portion of the tax money levied in this district for the equalized support of other schools will now be retained in this district. All registered voters are urged to vote.

About 60 friends of the Reverend and Mrs. Floyd Pollock entertained the Pollack's at a surprise house warming in their new home located at the junction of the Brownsboro and Brophy roads. Mrs. Raymond Chamberlain was in charge of the party and Mrs. James Edge provided for entertainment and music. Mr. Pollock was pastor of the Community Bible church in Eagle Point for five years, and has recently returned from Tedee church near Salem. The Pollock's have a son Robert who is in the Navy, stationed at China Lake, Calif., a son Paul in grammar school, and a daughter, Mrs. Vernon Ragsdale, Eagle Point.

Mrs. Lulu Cavin, of Bever creek, Calif., has been in town visiting her daughter, Mrs. D. P. Smith and family. Mrs. Cavin fell during the Thanksgiving holidays, breaking her left hip and shoulder. D. P. Smith Jr., who has been logging on the Klamath River, also was in town visiting his mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Cook of Ashland have been visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Cathy this past week, and Mrs. M. A. Nave of McCallister, Okla., mother of Mrs. Cathy, has been visiting here for several months, but will return to her home this week.

Scott Etzel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nat Etzel, celebrated his third birthday with a party this week. His guests were, Steve and Cathy Hayes, Steve and Mary Bonebrake, Karen and Margie Martin and Dana Jo Bradshaw.

The state and county highway road crews have been called out, working around the clock, to clear the highway of snow on the Tiller Trail road this past week. Several cars had to be towed out of the heavy snows.

The Letterman's club sponsored a skating party in Grants Pass on Wednesday evening, with 112 students attending. Spike Malloroy and Stan Smith drove the buses carrying the students to the party.

A supper party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Martin on Saturday evening, Jan. 19. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Hale, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Tresham, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Bonebrake, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Nat Etzel, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Calloway, and Mr. and Mrs. Don McGovern. The evening was spent in playing cards and games.

The Annual Lady Lions mother's march will be conducted Thursday evening, Jan. 31 from 7 to 9 p.m. The ladies will meet at the home of Mrs. Stewart Hopper before the march, and will call at the homes where the porch lights are burning. The territory includes city of

Around Hollywood

By ALINE MOSBY

Hollywood — (U.P.) — Anthony Quinn may be the surprise success of the Oscar Derby—he's a favorite to cop two Academy Award nominations for two "Cinderella" roles that at one time were expected to fail.

Not since Laurence Olivier's "Hamlet" has an actor in a foreign film snared an Oscar nomination. But Quinn may get enough votes to be nominated as best actor for his striking performance as a brutish strong man in "La Strada," an Italian movie that's one of the most successful foreign films in years.

And Anthony appears a shoo-in to snare a nomination — and probably an award — for stepping into the small, supporting role of Paul Gauguin in "Lust for Life."

The triumph has even more meaning for Quinn, because he kept faith in both roles even though others around him thought the films would fail.

No Salary "Nobody wanted to finance 'La Strada,'" Quinn said as we sat in the Paramount commissary.

"When I was in Italy for 'Attila' I told the producers I would walk out unless they also made 'La Strada.' I did the role as a favor, a labor of love. I received no salary.

"I accepted a percentage of the profits but I haven't seen that money yet. The picture cost only $250,000. It's run a year and a half in Paris, is in its eighth month in New York and fourth month here."

The unusual Quinn—a true gem in this city of overexpanded egos—then stepped "down" into a supporting role. He was on the screen in "Lust for Life" only 7 1/2 minutes. But he made the part so memorable that viewers felt he was part of the entire picture.

Pans 'Stardom' "I don't believe in all that star stuff," scoffed the bluntly-talking actor. "I don't know how to behave like a star. Never been to a premiere or Hollywood party. Been to nightclubs only twice."

"Lust for Life" was another surprise box-office smash. Quinn revealed that during the filming it was called "John Houseman's Folly," after the producer, at MGM.

"They thought it would lay a bomb," he said. "Most of the cast figured they were in a picture that just the intellectuals would like, and the critics, and maybe a few art theaters would play it.

"But I had faith in the movie. I kept saying people would like it. Some people think of art as something in a dark museum. Art is becoming a dirty word. We're ashamed of it. But I think films are an art form."

Co-Starring With Booth The sought-after Quinn now is co-starring with Shirley Booth at Paramount in "Hot Spell." As in "Lust for Life" and "La Strada," he again plays a man who regards women with casual cruelty.

"I'm really not hostile to women," the dark-eyed actor laughed. "I've been married for 20 years and have three children, all girls. I'm gentler at home. I paint pictures, love to cook and build houses as a hobby."

Duncan Sandys Seeks Closer Cooperation New York — (U.P.) — British Defense Minister Duncan Sandys said Saturday he is going to Washington to obtain closer Anglo-American cooperation and not to ask for aid.

Sandys, armed with some of the most sweeping powers ever held by a British defense minister, flew here from London on his way to talks with Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson and other top U. S. officials.
