

Buried Treasure

by Pinky Gage

1901 U.S. Rifle With Rod Bayonet of Premium Value

The rifle Frank handed me was in appearance, to say the least, a fine specimen of a rifle. It looked like a magazine rifle, but the magazine under the receiver instead of projecting to one side.

It was a bolt action, .30 caliber rifle, a little over four feet long with the stock held to the barrel by two bands, the wood extending to about four inches from the mouth. On the under side of the barrel a cleaning rod was inserted in the stock.

SCROLL AND STAR DESIGN UNCOMMON IN COLOR GLASS

The piece de resistance was a small, round, clear glass plate. It was a simple, clear glass plate, but the design was simple and clear. It was a scroll and star design, a design that was uncommon in color glass.

After dinner, I mentioned this to my hostess, who became curious about the set of plates she had purchased some years before at an auction merely because she liked them. She was quite pleased to hear about them.

PHONY COIN REALLY IS AN UNUSUAL DIME

"This stone was insulating," Mac said, looking at a dime in his hand. "But I didn't let it bother me. It just reached out and took the dime back and gave him another."

Mac passed me the dime. It was shiny but not mint clean. An excellent example of the 1859 coin, but, so far as I could see, nothing really to get excited about.

I scrutinized it for mint marks. There were none, which meant that it had been struck in Philadelphia, and therefore was not worth more than 25 or 33 at the outside, I said so.

Comment On This and That

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Feature Writer

Washington (UP)—Perhaps before too long, congressmen, the press and the public can travel all over Capitol Hill without getting wet. For free, of course.

I recently spent a rainy day with the Capitol under the only subway operating in Washington the shortest ride in the world. The little cars run 700 feet northeast and return 700 feet southwest between the Senate end of the Capitol to the Senate office building. If right-thinking prevails, the subway eventually will be extended to include:

Heart Fund Campaign Starts in County

The statewide heart fund campaign got underway in Jackson county Friday, Feb. 1, and will continue through February, according to Larry S. Horton, heading the campaign in this area.

Horton said funds raised in the heart fund campaign are used to finance the research, education and community service projects of the Heart association on a year-around basis.

Highlight of the drive will be Heart Sunday, Feb. 24, when volunteers will stage a door-to-door campaign in about 75 Oregon cities.

Persons wishing to contribute in the Jackson county area may send their donations to Heart Fund, in care of the Heart treasurer, Dwight Houghton, Medford branch of the U. S. National bank.

Oregon State College Booster Group Planned

A meeting to form a local chapter of the "Thirty Staters," Oregon State college boosters club is set for 7 p.m., Feb. 5, at the Medford hotel. Bob Knoll, alumni director, and Bob Watson, assistant football coach at OSC, will attend. The meeting is open to all male alumni of OSC.
