Action Deferred on Request from Gas Dealers Limiting Price Signs

The Medford city council last night deferred action on a request from the Rogue Valley Gasoline Dealers association that sizes of gasoline price signs for use by Medford retail service station operators be regulated.

Victor Milnes, president of Fortune Stations Inc., Medford, representing the gasoline dealers' association, said the Portland city council has adopted an ordinance similar to the one proposed for Medford eliminating large "circus type" placards for use by service station operators.

Purpose of the proposed ordinance, Milnes said, "is to prevent a price war in Medford among gas dealers. Medford has been on the "brink" of a price war for the last two weeks, he added.

Large Signs

According to Milnes large price signs facilitate price wars by placing the competing level of service stations on price alone, sacrificing the competing significance of service and quality.

He emphasized purpose of the ordinance was not to suppress competition among Medford service stations, but to find a tool to enable service station operators to cooperate among themselves.

Milnes pointed out lower gas prices were not "the boom" to the motorist as it first appears. On the contrary, he said, price wars penalize the operator and absorb his profits. He estimated a price war in Medford would cost the city about $60,000 in revenue a month.

The suggested ordinance proposes city service station operators limit the size of their price signs to not less than 5 by 7 inches and not larger than 7 by 10 inches.

Favor Ordinance

Milnes said all Medford service station operators (totaling about 50) except one, favor the proposed ordinance. He added the one exception was the only operator in the city now using large "circus type" price signs. This one operator could bring on a price war by forcing other service stations in Medford to compete with his standards, Milnes stated.

Councilman Robert Van Sickle said the issue in the matter was whether or not the particular operator was selling good merchandise, not if competing operators could meet his prices.

Councilman Jimmy Dunlevy added that an ordinance regulating price sign sizes could have "far reaching effects," and possibly lead to regulating other forms of advertising.

Misrepresentation

Milnes explained the large price signs are often characterized by misrepresentation, whereby the sign announces one price in big print but included an additional tax fee on the same sign in smaller print.

City Attorney E. R. Bashaw pointed out similar legislation has been successful in Portland and Eugene in preventing price wars ever since the smaller price sign has been in use.

Councilman Al Bradford brought out that the ordinance would not prevent county service stations from using the placard-type price signs. Milnes said public opinion and city pressures could be brought into action in such cases.

The council indicated it may take action on the matter at its next meeting. The proposed ordinance was deferred to give the city attorney time to study legal aspects of the ordinance.

Mayor John Snider indicated a special council meeting could be called earlier if an emergency developed in Medford among its gas dealers.

Mautz Charges Misquotation

Portland — (U.P.) — Robert T. Mautz, Republican national committeeman from Oregon, said yesterday that Newsweek magazine "misquoted and misinterpreted" him last week.

Mautz said the publication quoted him as telling the GOP National Committee in Washington that the Republican party "will be dead as a dodo bird if it doesn't return to old fashioned Republicanism."

Mautz denied that he used the word "old fashioned." He said "I pointed out that voters of the Far West are independent and that the November elections demonstrated that even th tremendous popularity of President Eisenhower could not in and of itself carry candidates into office."

The article, Mautz said in a statement yesterday, implied that he is not only unfavorable to the Eisenhower administration but also to "bright young men" as Republican candidates and that "I advocate a return to old-fashioned Republicanism." Mautz said none of this was true.

Holmes Urges Boost In Veterans' Loans

Salem — (U.P.) — Gov. Robert D. Holmes said today that he favored a veterans' loan bill offering "realistic increase" to maximum amounts veterans may borrow from the state to buy homes and farms.

"The bill I have in mind," the governor said, "would allow veterans to borrow up to 90 per cent of the appraised value, and would raise the home limits to $15,000 and the farm limits to the area of $30,000.

Present maximums are 75 per cent of $9,000 for homes and $15,000 for farms.

Three bills have already been submitted in the House, Gov. Holmes noted, "but I believe the one offered by Rep. Howard most nearly meets the needs of qualified veterans."

The bill by Rep. Norman R. Howard of Portland calls for $15,000 and $40,000 maximums with veterans entitled to borrow up to 90 per cent of the appraised value.

Stocks Recover After Brief Dip

New York — (U.P.) — Stocks registered a substantial recovery in the late trading today after a drift to lower levels in earlier dealings.

Otherwise the news of the day was routine. Ford declared the usual dividend. Timken raised its dividend and its stock rose more than a point. Western Union firmed on a rise in earnings.

Lone Pine Residents Schedule Meeting to Discuss Legal Action

Attorney Edward Kelly will speak Friday night at a meeting of Lone Pine area residents to discuss possible legal action for the annulment of the annexation of either the Kenwood-Grandview district in entirety or the Lone Pine area within the annexed area.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m., Friday at the Lone Pine schpol. Boundaries of the Lone Pine district extend from Buckshot Hill rd., north to Roberts rd. and from Springbrook rd. east to Brookdale rd.

Kelly said Lone Pine residents will consider forming a committee which would finance and organize a movement for annulment. The city council annexed the area last month after Kelly, representing several residents in the Lone Pine area of Kenwood-Grandview district, presented to the council a petition protesting annexation signed by 62 of the 64 residents living in the smaller area.

Chief reason Lone Pine residents object to annexation, Kelly said, is because they are all farmers and have their own water service as well as septic tanks. He added they are already heavily taxed and taxes would increase from 77.9 to 116.6 mills upon annexation.

The Medford attorney cited a recent decision by the Oregon Supreme Court on a General Electric vs. Estacada case in which an annexation was ruled void when it was declared "unreasonable." A city can annex for legitimate purposes but cannot reach out to take any land it wants, Kelly said.

The case points out cities do not have absolute right to annex contiguous property irrespective of reasonableness of the annexation, he said.

Accorrding to Kelly a city limits should not be extended to take in land used only for agricultural or horticultural purposes. Land also should not be annexed when it is vacant and would not derive special value from its adaptability for city use, he said.

Possible legal action required in the annulment, Kelly said, could be filing a suit for declaratory judgment ruling the entire annexation void or void just insofar as the Lone Pine area is affected.

Kelly said the annexation is subject to judicial review regardless if Lone Pine residents appeal the matter to the state supreme court.
