Three Young Women To Pioneer Library Services For Nations

New Brunswick, N.J.—(U.P.)—Three young women from three continents are studying here to prepare for pioneering library programs in their native countries.

Attending classes at the two-year-old Rutgers University Graduate School of Library Service are the Misses Solmaz Izdemir of Ankara, Turkey; Amelia Ramirez of Bogota, Colombia, and Koebandia, who like many of her fellow Indonesians has only one name.

Miss Solmaz will help launch Turkey's first school library next fall, about the same time Miss Ramirez will become librarian in the new National Office of Agricultural Research in Colombia. Miss Koebandia, studying to become ministry librarian in the Indonesian Ministry of Agriculture at Djakarta, will inaugurate a training course in library methods on her return.
