

Hockey Officials 'Wait and See'

New York—(U.P.)—National Hockey League officials adopted a "wait and see" attitude today while the newly-organized players association planned to make its first formal requests of the club owners next April.

The players are particularly interested, it was learned, in discussing their role in the NHL's new coast-to-coast telecasts. The decision to form the new association was related directly to the telecasts as well as NHL officials' recent predictions that major league hockey soon will undergo tremendous expansion in the United States.

The players announced Monday that they have organized the association and elected Ted Lindsay, captain of the Detroit Red Wings, as its president.

Lindsay said only one player in the league has not joined the group but he emphasized the players' are not out to make trouble.

NHL President Clarence Campbell sounded the keynote for the owners and general managers, who all conceded the players' action caught them by surprise.

Campbell said Lindsay's remarks "represent about as fine a public relations statement as the National Hockey League could hope to have, because it is quite evident that the officials of the new association are completely satisfied with the treatment they have received from the member clubs of the NHL, both individual and collectively."

San Antonio Is Next For Pro Golfers

Tucson, Ariz.—(U.P.)—The professional golf tour moved into San Antonio, Tex., today with Dow Finsterwald, the newest winner of the winter season following his four stroke victory in the Tucson Open playoff.

Finsterwald, a steady young man who was pro golf's second leading money winner last year, beat Don Whitt, Alameda, Calif., Monday with a five-under-par 65 performance in the playoff round here. The Tequesta, Fla., sharpshooter got $2,000, and Whitt $1,500.

Whitt, who couldn't find the fairway on much of the first nine for the trees, shot a one-under-par 69. His chance vanished after the first five holes.

Finsterwald shot six birdies in his winning round. He took a two stroke jump on Whitt on the 10th, 17th, and 18th holes, while Whitt birdied the 13th, 15th, and 18th.

The prize money put Finsterwald in fourth place, behind Doug Ford, Jay Hebert and Bill Casper Jr., among the top money winners of the 1957 season thus far.

St. Mary's Team Surprising California Hoop Association

By SCOTT BAILLIE
United Press Sports Writer
San Francisco—(U.P.)—Coach Jim Weaver and forward Odell Johnson, two of the quiet men on the St. Mary's campus, are turning the California Basketball Association race into an uproar with the surprise showing of their team.

Weaver, bespectacled and shy, has taken a green ball club that was rated a cinch for the second division and made it into a solid contender for the CBA title.

Silent, modest Johnson, who Weaver calls "the most underrated player on the coast," continues to dominate almost every game as the Gaels' clutch man and number one cog.

Johnson recently was described as "unobtrusive" and that just about sums it up," Weaver says. "Sometimes you wouldn't even think he was on the floor, but at the end of a game he usually is the high for the night in points and rebounds."

A typical Johnsonian finish went into the books last Saturday night when Odell got off a jump shot with two seconds to play which gave St. Mary's a 77-76 thriller over San Jose State.

The triumph also helped cement Weaver's constant assertion: "We are capable of beating any team on our schedule."

St. Mary's overall record this year, with a team bulging with sophomores plus the veteran Johnson, is 11-7. The Gaels currently are third in the tightly jammed three-way battle for first place in the CBA.
