The Medical Roundup

Loss of Much Hair

A few elderly women are very unhappy because they are getting bald in patches. Other persons, both men and women, have lost all the hair from the top of their head after a fright. For instance, a mother brought her boy of ten who had seen a terrible accident in the street. He had seen people bleeding and dying and it had upset him much. Soon afterwards, the hair on his head turned white and then it began to fall out in handfuls. Another woman, bald as a door-knob, told me that she lost her hair a while ago when, for a few months, she was insane. Evidently, strong mental shocks can cause hair to fall out. But sometimes I will see a person who lost all his (or her) hair at a time when there did not seem to be any cause for mental conflict. Then I cannot guess what the cause was.

In some of these cases, the hair comes back again within three months, without the person's having done anything about it. If I were suddenly to lose all my hair I certainly wouldn't go to an advertising hair-club. I would be sure that he would not know any more about growing hair than I do, and I have never been able to learn much about it! My only hope would be that as the dead hairs fell out, new ones would be growing up to take their place.

Rubbing Might Help

If the little follicle in which hair grows is destroyed by disease, I can't imagine how anything can ever bring back the hair. It is conceivable that, in some cases, it might help to rub the scalp frequently in an attempt to bring more blood into it. If it could be shown that the person lacked sufficient secretion from the thyroid gland, it would help to give some thyroid substance, but I practically never see a person who has lost his or her hair because of any definite defect in the function of any gland of the endocrine system, such as the thyroid, ovary, pituitary or adrenal.

I do know one thing, and that is that Better Business Bureaus are fighting the hair quacks. The managers of these bureaus tell me that many of these quacks are rapacious crooks who, when they get hold of some young man worrying about his baldness, searce him badly, and then, for months, keep getting out of him every spare dollar he can lay his hands on. The quack guarantees a "cure," but when the lad, disappointed, sues to get his money back, the quack's lawyer keeps continuing the case until the victim gets tired of going to court and thus losing a day's work; and he gives up.

Dr. Alvarez hopes his readers will understand that it would be impossible for him to answer requests for information or to attempt to diagnose by mail.
