

UP AND AWAY—The U. S. Air Force awarded a contract to Hiller Helicopters of Palo Alto, Calif. to develop this tilt-wing aircraft. The plane will be propeller driven and capable of vertical takeoff and landing. Designated the X-18, it will have less hovering capability but greater forward speed than a 'copter. Project will be directed by the Air Research and Development Command of USAF. Artist's conception shows the transport-size plane in a vertical takeoff. In upper left the wings are moving from vertical to forward flight. In upper right the wings are in position for normal flight.

Morse Says Move on For Federal-Private Power Development

Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) charged yesterday that the administration has launched a "terrific propaganda drive" to promote federal-private utility development of power projects in the West.

Morse, speaking extemporaneously in the Senate, accused the administration of seeking joint development so "big business interests that support the administration can take all the profits."

Morse said he wanted to "associate myself" with a plea voiced a few minutes earlier by his Oregon Democratic colleague, Sen. Richard L. Neuberger, that California's two Republican senators join him in opposing the administration's joint development plan for the Columbia Basin.

Says Drive Is On

"I found out in California last week," Morse said, "that there is a terrific drive on to get partnership for the Trinity River Project in that state."

Morse charged that Interior Secretary Fred A. Seaton had been "sending out trial balloons" on bringing private utilities into power project development. He saw this as evidence that Seaton was "as much for a giveaway program as was his predecessor," Douglas McKay.

Neuberger said he based his invitation on Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel's announced opposition to a proposal by Seaton for a government partnership with the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. on the Trinity River Project.

Columbia Basin Power

"If so-called partnership with the power companies is bad at Trinity, a comparatively small project, it is even worse in the Columbia River Basin where lurks over 40 per cent of all the potential water power in the United States," Neuberger said.

The Oregon Senator said the administration still clings to the discredited partnership program which Sen. Kuchel has so rightly condemned as being against the public interest and welfare.

Neuberger asked Kuchel and Sen. William F. Knowland "to join with us of the Pacific Northwest in resisting the so-called private power partnership."

"Now that partnership threatens the Trinity River Basin in their own state, we invite them to join us in pushing to passage the bill for the great federal high dam at Hells Canyon," he said.

Poultry Production To Keep Prices Stable

San Francisco—(U.P.)—E. Floyd Forbes, president of the Western States Meat Packers Association, believes that increased poultry production will make up for a drop in meat output in the West and keep meat prices stable this year.

That is, barring any sudden worsening of the international situation or drought conditions, he said.

Forbes made the forecast as he opened the 11th annual convention of the association here.

He predicted there would be about 2 per cent fewer cattle this year than in 1956, 5 per cent fewer hogs, and 2 per cent fewer sheep. But he looked for a 3 per cent gain in chickens and a 17 per cent gain in turkeys to make up the difference.

Rare Copy of Burns' First Poems Located

Hanover, N.H. — (U.P.) — The Baker Library at Dartmouth college has acquired a rare copy of the first edition of Robert Burns' first book of poems.

The first edition, limited to 621 copies, was published in 1786 in Edinburgh, Scotland in 1786 under the title, "Poems, Chiefly in the Scottish Dialect." It is now widely known as the "Kilmarnock Burns."

The copy now at Dartmouth was purchased last year from a London book dealer, Charles Sawyer.
