Around Hollywood

By ALINE MOSBY

Hollywood—(U.P.)—Dean Martin makes his nightclub debut as a single in Las Vegas, Nev., next Wednesday.

Wednesday, though he's expecting to be a little nervous, he's "never been happier" in his life.

Except for one TV appearance last year, Dean makes his first public bow without ex-partner Jerry Lewis when he opens in the Sands Hotel.

"It's terrible to get into a rut but now I'm out of it and on my way to better things," the singer said between rehearsals at his Beverly Hills home.

"Some of Jerry's friends have told me they don't think I can make it. Well, I think I can. I have incentive now. This is a challenge. I can hardly wait to begin the show."

Former Partner Alters Act
Jerry added dancing, singing and pathos-type comedy to his new act, additions that brought mixed reactions from critics used to seeing him as a clown. Martin will "just get up and sing as I've always done."

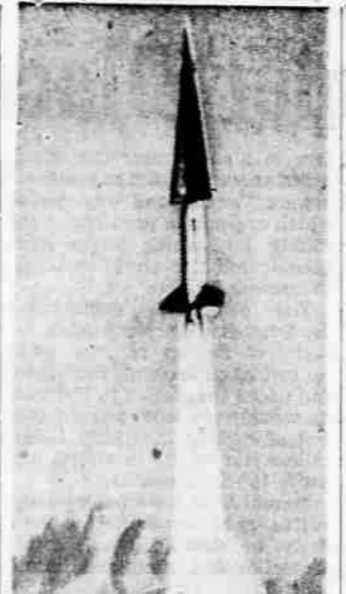

"It was tougher on Jerry when he started as a single," Martin said. "The audience isn't waiting to go into hysterics over me. They're expecting to hear me sing. I'll have a little patter, I'll do some special songs and a soft shoe dance."

Dean already has proved to the movie industry he can stand alone. Critics were enthusiastic at previews of his first solo movie "10,000 Bedrooms," to be released in March.

Work Becomes Enjoyable
"I was so happy to do that picture," the relaxed, easy-going Martin said. "I couldn't wait to go to work. When I worked on those other movies (with Jerry) I didn't even read the script. I knew I'd be a heel for 70 minutes and then a nice guy. I had no push, no drive."

"I just went to the studio day after day hoping to get a day off for golf," he continued. "On '10,000 Bedrooms' I wanted to work on Sunday. No tension, no pressure. I'm so glad to get out of those slap happy pictures. They got me where I am today, and I'm grateful, but after a while Jerry got out of hand and began to push me out of the picture."

Added Martin, "Now I know where I'm going."

Thornton Rules on Tax Bill Referendum

Salem—(U.P.)—Oregon voters may invoke the referendum on one item of a tax bill without affecting the validity of other items, Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton said today.

Under the ruling, if the Legislature passed a bill both repealing the 45 per cent surtax and providing for increased income tax rates, could be referred to the people but the surtax repeal would remain in effect.

Thornton's opinion was requested by Sen. Rudie Wilhelm Jr., Portland Republican.

Democrats have introduced a bill providing both for repeal of the surtax and adjustments in income tax rates.

Georgia is the largest state east of the Mississippi.
