

Resolution Calls For Committee To Study Commissions

Salem—U.S.—House joint resolution 20 setting up an interim committee to study possible consolidation of the state's numerous boards and commissions passed the House 44 to 17 yesterday.

Opposition to the study was voiced by Rep. Eddie Ahrens, Turner Republican, who feared that commodity commissions which tax themselves to promote their industry would be eliminated or put under control of the governor.

Alarming Growth
Rep. Guy Jonas, Salem Democrat and a sponsor of the resolution, said that state boards and commissions were growing at "an alarming rate."

He said there were 55 boards and commissions in 1954, 97 by 1955, and that 15 more were added after the 1955 legislative session.

At this rate it won't be long before we have more than 200 boards and commissions," Jonas said. Bills to create a dozen more commissions are now being considered by the Legislature.

Rep. Shirley Field, Portland Republican, objected to the interim study on grounds it was a "delay by study" in dealing with the state's commission problems.

Rep. Don Willner, Portland Democrat, said an interim study would result in economy by consolidating duplicative services, would increase efficiency of state government and make it more responsible to the people.

Must Justify Existence
Secretary of State Mark Hatfield commented on passage of the resolution that "any board or commission which cannot justify its existence as the most efficient and economical way in which to administer a reasonable function of government should be abolished or consolidated with another agency."

He protested, however, that a House committee was studying later this week a bill to abolish the State Board of Control without a study.

"The Board of Control may not be the best way to administer our state institutions but it certainly merits as much study and consideration as does any other agency," Hatfield said.

Wyoming, Colorado Under Snow Blanket

By UNITED PRESS

A western storm buried portions of Wyoming and Colorado under one-half foot of snow today, blocking at least two major transcontinental highways and closing numerous secondary routes.

A six-inch accumulation of snow was reported at Cheyenne, Wyo., early today, and seven inches were added to the snow pack at Leadville, Colo.

State patrols closed U.S. 30 in southeast Wyoming and U.S. 87 in northeast Colorado and southeast Wyoming during the night because of snow, ice and poor visibility.
