FALSE TEETH
That Loosen
Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

OUT OF THE WOODS
by JIM STEVENS

Anthony Zellerbach came to San Francisco in 1868. His wife and two little sons were with him, on a sidewheeler from the Sacramento river gold country. It was a new chapter in the American story of the multitude of poor boys who worked and won their way to fortune and renown—and also to service in the building of business and industry—in western wilderness regions.

Ten years earlier James J. Hill, very young, friendless and unknown, had reached St. Paul. And in 1852 a German lad of 18, Frederick Weyerhaeuser, had arrived in America and made a start as a sawmill laborer.

Hill, Weyerhaeuser and Zellerbach, all three poor boys in their beginnings, all three poor young men in the West of pioneering enterprise, fathered forces of trade and production that enriched forest history in Oregon, Washington and California, and live and grow on today with promise untold for the economic future of the entire Pacific Northwest region.

Life of a Salesman

Anthony Zellerbach was a salesman born. Circumstances made him a pioneer merchant of paper in San Francisco. His second son, Isadore, entered the business in 1888, at the age of 22, and was elected president of the Zellerbach Paper Company in 1907, when the firm's name was changed from A. Zellerbach & Sons. Anthony Zellerbach, however, remained titular head of the company until his death in 1911.

Isadore Zellerbach became a master builder, with Louis Bloch in the expansion of the corporation that is managing forests, mills and laboratories now, on plans and investments in a century of tomorrows. James D Zellerbach, son of Isadore, has retired as president of the corporation, to serve his country as embassador to Italy.

The story of Louis Bloch highlights the "Crown" side of the Crown Zellerbach Corporation. Born in 1876, he was on his own as a laborer 18 years later. His start in paper was a job of tying bundles of paper bags in the San Francisco factory of Crown Paper company. In a very short while he was boss of the factory, and assistant secretary of the company. The youthful Bloch went upward and on when Crown shareholders built a paper mill at Floriston, Calif. In 1907, aged 31, he was appointed manager of Crown Columbia Pulp and Paper company, at Camas. Four years later the Floriston company was merged with Crown Columbia, which in 1914 was merged with the Lebanon Paper company and the Willamette Pulp and Paper company, all under the strong guiding hand of Louis Bloch.

The Mighty Market

A year later, as chief organizer of Pacific Mills Limited of Ocean Falls, British Columbia, Louis Bloch was made managing director and chairman of the board of this Canadian enterprise. And in 1924 he was elected president of Crown Willamette Paper company.

Four years passed, in which business relations between the Zellerbach Corporation—formed in 1924—and Crown Willamette Paper company grew into an association that was all but a merger. In 1928 the two presidents led their companies into a single organization that was named the Crown Zellerbach Corporation. Bloch became chairman of the board, and Isadore Zellerbach, president.

Markets are the moral of the tale. Now, today, it is often that the salesman initiates improvement on established products and research on new lines. It is the work of the salesman that brings in the money for tree farming and technical development of the products of tree-crop harvests. And it is the work of the forestry and product research teams, in turn, that provides the salesman to "The Trade" with bigger and better lines, and with substantial promise for future new business.
