Certified Check Sent to Stedman Family by Citizens

A certified check for $400 has been sent to the family of Bob Stedman, and more will be mailed as soon as it is counted, it was reported Saturday by Don McNeil, chairman of a "Get Well Bob Stedman" citizens committee.

In addition, "the longest get well card in the world" will be sent soon, he said.

These are the results of a project started in cooperation with the Medford Kiwanis club by a group of friends of the Medford High school English and dramatics instructor, who has been seriously ill for several months, undergoing a series of operations.

Project Closes
The project came to a close Friday night at a public performance of the Young Oregonians vaudeville troupe at the high school auditorium. The free show, sponsored by Kiwanians as a "thank you" gesture to Medford residents for their support of the recent Kiwanis Kapers, was used as the focal point of the Stedman project.

Money to assist in the Stedmans' medical expenses, and the long card, with enough signatures to make it stretch from one side of the auditorium stage to the other, were all collected on a purely voluntary basis, both in advance of the Friday night show, and some following it. The get well card idea was originated by Vic Milnes, Kiwanis member who acted as liaison man with the committee.

Nearly 600 persons attended the well-received variety show put on by the Portland youngsters.

One of the indictments against Mallot charged conspiracy to commit a felony and the other charged extortion. Both Mallot and Roadnight had been under indictment on similar charges by an earlier grand jury.

Assistant Attorney General Arthur Kaplan told Judge Charles Redding that only "one more matter" remained to be considered by the grand jury in its investigation of vice. He said that matter awaits a "mechanical determination" to be made Monday.

Explanation of Disappearance of Flyer is Rejected

Washington — (U.P.) — The United States Saturday rejected the Dominican Government's explanation of the mysterious disappearance of American flyer Gerald L. Murphy of Eugene, Ore.

Murphy, 23, has been missing in the Dominican Republic since Dec. 3.

In a formal note delivered by the U.S. Embassy in Ciudad Trujillo, this government urgently requested that the investigation of Murphy's disappearance be "vigorously pursued."

A copy of the note was handed to Dominican Ambassador Joaquin Salazar at the State Department.

The note challenged the Dominican government's contention that a Dominican airline pilot, Octavio De la Maza, had confessed to killing Murphy before committing suicide.

A purported suicide letter by De la Maza admitting guilt and other documents were handed to the State Department in January. They have been examined by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"From an examination of these documents and other evidence, this government has concluded that if the specimens of handwriting submitted by the Dominican authorities as being of De la Maza are actually his, then the suicide note was not written by De la Maza," the U.S. note said.

Other points in the Dominican explanation of Murphy's disappearance questioned by the State Department were:

1. That Murphy was not acquainted with persons of political influence in the Dominican Republic. The United States investigation indicated that Murphy was "well acquainted" with high Dominican officials, including the former undersecretary of the Army, Arturo R. Espallart now Dominican consul general in New York.

2. That Murphy's income while in the Dominican Republic was limited to $350 a month. The U.S. investigation showed he had a substantially larger capital than that claimed by the Dominican authorities.

"The government of the United States," the note said, "is gravely concerned about the disappearance of one of its citizens in the Dominican Republic. It assumes that this concern is shared by the Dominican government."

Murphy disappeared Dec. 3.
