Oregon Per Capita Income Falls Under National Average

Portland—Oregon's per capita income fell below the national average in both 1954 and 1955, according to the latest estimates of personal income released today by James E. Maxwell, business analyst in charge of the Portland office, U.S. Department of Commerce.

Oregon's per capita income in 1954 averaged $1,762. In 1955 it averaged $1,834. This compares to U.S. averages of $1,767 in 1954 and $1,847 in 1955. Idaho's per capita personal income amounted to $1,144 and $1,462 respectively. Per capita income for Washington reached $1,964 in 1954 and $1,987 in 1955.

The new publication estimates Oregon's total personal income in 1955 at $3,090 million. Wage and salary payments accounted for $1,994 million or nearly two-thirds of this total. Proprietor's and property income supplied $538 and $366 million respectively to Oregon's total.

Approximately one-third, $656 million of all wage and salary payments in Oregon came from manufacturing industries, including lumber. Wholesale and retail trade, in second place, accounted for $405 million.

Complete information on the growth of personal and per capita income by states is contained in a new publication of the office of business economics entitled Personal Income by States. Since 1929. Copies are available at $1.50 from the Portland Field Office, U.S. Department of Commerce, 217 Pioneer Post Office building, Portland.

Stocks Hit New Low Since October 23

New York—(U.P.)—Volume in stocks fell off today to a new low since Oct. 23. Prices declined irregularly with a rallying tendency visible near closing time.

Uncertainties in the Middle East plus a decline in steel operations helped reduce interest in the market.

International oils were the first to decline. Their losses at the lows ranged to nearly two points. Coppers were hard hit for a time on further efforts to curtail production. They, too, recovered part of their decline.

Explosions Rock Liberian Vessel

Miami, Fla.—(U.P.)—Two violent explosions rocked the 445-foot Liberian tanker Perama 175 miles southwest of St. Petersburg today, but the crew abandoned ship without injury, the Coast Guard reported.

The Esso Bermuda, another tanker, radioed it was on the scene and was alongside two lifeboats carrying about 25 men.

The Coast Guard said that the Perama was wallowing low in the water with its decks nearly awash and was in a near sinking condition. Its engine room and several compartments were flooded.

The Esso Bermuda said the chief officer of the stricken vessel was hopeful that the Perama could be saved and was trying to arrange to have the big tanker towed to port.

The Perama was en route from Thames Haven, England, to Galveston, Tex., loaded with a "dry cargo" when the mishap occurred.

145 Persons Make Millionaire List

Washington—(U.P.)—A total of 145 persons formed the most exclusive club in America in 1953 by reporting incomes of more than a million dollars. New Yorkers and Texans dominated the membership list.

Some 58 million other taxpayers failed to make it. Total income tax payments in 1953 amounted to $29 billion or $230 billion in earnings, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

The service reported Sunday night that 53 residents of New York state and 18 from oil-rich Texas signed up for the 1953 millionaires' club. Delaware, home of the powerful Du Pont family, placed 11 in the inner circle.

Other states with members in the fraternity included California, 3.

The millionaires were not named.

Russian Nuclear Blast Blamed for Radiation
