Modern Society Still Looks Down On Working Wife

By GUY BAULEY
United Press Correspondent
New York—(U.P.)—Our society still looks down its nose at the working wife, although her number steadily increases.

If she takes an outside job, she is told "motherhood is a full time duty." Yet, three of every 10 married women are working; two out of every five mothers with school age children are in the national labor force.

This contrasting picture of the working wife is drawn in a couple of publications which came across my desk today.

One, "The Modern Mother's Dilemma," said that even today society puts the question, Home or Career.

The other publication, "Womanpower," doesn't try to solve woman's problem of adjusting to the dual role. It simply is a report on the "revolution" in the employment of women in the last half century.

Most Women Will Work
The first, released by the non-profit Educational Organization Public Affairs committee, is written by Mrs. Sidonie Matsner Gruenberg, former director of the Child Study Association of America, and her daughter, Mrs. Hilda Sidney Krech.

The "Womanpower" report is from the National Manpower council, a private, non-partisan citizens' group established in 1951 at Columbia university.

"At least nine out of every 10 American women are likely to work outside the home in the course of their lives," said the council.

Today's schoolgirls may expect to spend 25 years or more in paid work outside the home. Women, the council continued, will account for at least half of the expected increase of 10 million persons in the labor force by 1965.

Families Still First
The council said women today earn one fifth of the nation's income. Six of every 10 working women are married. Five out of 10 are past 40.

"The combination of home and work may not be attempted by all or even most women," said the council. "But there is no question that it will be the goal of increasing numbers."

Granted, said authors Gruenberg and Krech.

But they added, "The notion still is prevalent that it is unwomanly for a mother to think about having interests beyond her home."

"It is utterly false to assume or imply that women 'hanker after outside activity as an alternative to their home life. Most women want families first, and the other things in addition."

"What many seem to have forgotten is that to be a complete mother, one also must be a complete woman."

Medford Couple To Speak Monday
Eagle Point—Eagle Point Lions' auxiliary will hold a potluck dinner meeting at the home of Mrs. Willard Cave Monday, March 25, at 7:30 p.m. Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Clay, Medford, will be guest speakers and will talk on "A Year's Stay in Europe."

They will also show pictures. At a board meeting of the auxiliary held at the home of Mrs. Don Green, the group discussed the cook books which will be sold at the state convention in June.

The auxiliary will provide filled nut cups for the dinner in Prospect March 22 which will honor state officers of the auxiliary.

Apple-cheese Snack
New York—(U.P.)—Snack suggestion—slices of fresh apple put together with a layer of cream cheese.

Wool should be rinsed in lukewarm water which has had one teaspoonful of borax to the gallon added. The borax softens the wool.

Two Institutes Held for Nurses

Two institutes were offered nurses in this district last week. A demonstration of tracheotomy equipment was given by Mrs. Phyllis Schroder preceding a lecture by Dr. Jack Ingram at Sacred Heart hospital. He covered symptoms indicating the need for tracheotomy, usually an emergency procedure to provide breathing in an otherwise closed throat, and emphasized the importance of preoperative and post-operative nursing care for these patients. A question and answer period followed.

Another institute in this series open to all nurses will be given soon.

Public health nurses attended a special meeting at Klamath Falls last Friday on cleft lip and cleft palate. Dr. Herald Lillywhite, chief of the regional speech center under the Oregon State Board of Health, explained this rather new and growing program. It covers all aspects of

Gardeners Plan Show on May 8

Central Point—Plans for the annual spring flower show were made at a meeting of the show committee with the president, Mrs. Francis Russell. It was held at the home of the committee chairman, Mrs. John Holmer.

The show will be held at Central Point Grange hall May 8. Title of the show will be "May Treasure Chest" and it will be competitive.

A complete show schedule will be published.

Shirts should be rotated so that each gets equal wear and a good way to do this is number each shirt inside the neckband.

Spice For Salads

Los Angeles—(U.P.)—The Western Growers association offers these salad variations. Try spicing, adding 1 tablespoon of sesame seed to the french dressing for a tossed green salad. A dash of curry powder can be added to the mayonnaise for shrimp or other seafoods. Or, include a trace of chili powder in the french dressing for bland fruit salads.
