Reports of Cattle Losses Mount Today In Blizzard Areas

By UNITED PRESS
Reports of cattle losses in the blizzard-swept Great Plains mounted today, and observers said some small ranchers probably will be forced to quit. Late information from Colorado and New Mexico indicated extremely heavy losses, and in Texas it was estimated that up to 3,000 head of cattle perished in the snowstorm. Although the losses were not regarded a major disaster in relation to the overall livestock supply, they were tragic to many individual stockmen who had hung on through seven years of drought. Officials said many of the cattle that survived the storm have been without food for a prolonged period and probably won't be marketable this year because of loss of weight. Besides taking a heavy toll of cattle, the storm did little to ease drought conditions in Texas, Colorado and New Mexico. Most of the plains were swept clean of snow, and the winds once again were raising dust in the area. Spring showers and warmer weather ranged across the Southern Plains today to help wash away mounds of snow dumped by the worst blizzard in memory. Western areas hit hardest by the 13-state storm were gradually recovering from the ordeal and taking stock of their losses—both human and property.

Standard Oil Ups Wholesale Price

Portland—(U.P.)—Standard Oil Company of California upped its wholesale price of premium grade gasoline 4 cent yesterday but no immediate effect was indicated on at-the-pump prices.

A spokesman for the company said that the price hike to distributors was in line with recent upgrading of the octane rating in the gasoline.

A spokesman for the Oregon Gasoline Dealers association, Sheldon Baker, said the price cutting has become fairly general in many sections of Portland and the wholesale price increase may be a long time in effect before it is ever felt by the motorist.

Power Company to Start Generator Installation

Portland—(U.P.)—Pacific Power and Light company will start work this summer on installation of a third 45,000-kilowatt power generator at its Merwin project on the Lewis river, according to E. Robert De Lucia, vice president and chief engineer.

Completion of the work will bring Merwin's peak power capacity to 150,000 kilowatts. Merwin project is located about 40 miles north of Portland in Washington state.

Kaiser Aluminum Plans Processing Plant

Oakland, Calif.—(U.P.)—Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical corporation announced today that it will build an aluminum foil processing plant to cost in excess of $2 million including equipment on a 30-acre site at Belpre, Ohio.

The company said 175 persons would be ultimately employed. Foil for processing will come from Kaiser's rolling mill at Ravenswood, W. Va., about 40 miles down river from Parkersburg. The plant was expected to be fully completed in 1958, but initial operations will commence in September.

New Jobs Keep Month's Employment Above '56

Salem—(U.P.)—New Jobs in trade, government and small industries kept February's employment in the Portland-Vancouver area about 2 per cent above last year despite a slight decline from January.

Estimates by the State Unemployment Compensation commission showed 245,700 persons at work in the area, compared with 247,000 the previous month and 240,200 in early 1956.

Oregon Highways Are Reported Free of Snow

Salem—(U.P.)—All Oregon highways were reported free of snow and motorists didn't have to bother about chains on any of them, the State Highway Department said today.

The Olds Ferry-Ontario secondary route remained closed at Malheur River bridge with traffic being detoured via temporary connection to U. S. 30.

Doctors See Closed Circuit Telecast Here

About 45 physicians from Jackson, Klamath and Siskiyou counties Wednesday night saw a live closed-circuit telecast on malignant and pre-malignant diseases of the breast and colon at station KBES-TV.

The telecast was the fourth in a series of Grand Rounds educational programs for doctors. The series originates at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, Pa., and programs are presented by a group of selected physicians. Surgical procedures were also shown in last night's telecast.

Medford is one of 54 cities in the United States in which the Grand Rounds series is received. Local sponsors are the Jackson County Medical society and the Ujohn company.

India has about 266 million acres under cultivation and more are being added.
