Prohibition of Net Fishing Predicted

Washington—(U.P.)—The nominee for United States Fish and Wildlife commissioner told the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce committee yesterday he predicts prohibition of net fishing for salmon on the high seas and coast areas of the Pacific Northwest.

Arnie J. Suomela, under cross examination by Chairman Warren G. Magnuson of the committee, said the action would be taken by California, Oregon and Washington under state laws banning such fishing operations contingent upon similar action being taken by Canada.

Magnuson said unless such net fishing for salmon is restricted there is no assurance there will be salmon runs left for the future.

Under the proposed practice, fishing boats from the three states and British Columbia intercept the runs along the coast and on the high seas.

Around Hollywood

By ALINE MOSBY

Hollywood—(U.P.)—Television and the movies are making a good little girl out of Patty McCormack, a blonde who collected an Oscar nomination for being state officials including Elsie Maxwell, food consultant for the board of control.

Budget proposals now before the legislature would abolish the post held by Miss Maxwell, who has favored a central ration and food control system for the state. This was included in a recommendation by Miss Maxwell, Leon Margosian, finance department, and Al Richardson, former food manager of Oregon state prison, after a survey last year.

She plays a nice moppet who mothers two little boys on NBC's "Matinee Theater" April 2. "But maybe I should do this," she grinned, and made motions of demolishing the two tykes as she did her victims in "The Bad Seed."

Next week Patty is another nice girl on "Heinz 57" and then she begins a seven-year contract at Universal-International studio, beginning with playing a little angel in "Christmas in Paradise."

Since Patty is going on 12, she may lose her trademark, those pigtails, for the U-I pictures. "I like good girl parts, too," she added.

Unimpressed by Stardom
In real life Patty is a far cry from the "Bad Seed" brat. She appears to be a healthy tomboy with nice manner who isn't impressed by stardom, a novelty among the little darlings of the movies.

The child became an actress at 6 by accident when she went to a speech theater in New York to overcome a lisp. The teacher sent her to a troupe of a play, which flopped. But her second Broadway drama was "The Bad Seed." It established her as a success among small fry thespians.

Patty was called to Hollywood for the movie version, and for "The Day They Gave Babies Away." She's now in such demand that her parents moved to the cinema capital.

Food Ration Plan Halted for Survey

Salem—(U.P.)—Gov. Robert D. Holmes said today the State board of control has decided to hold up start of a food ration program in the state's institutions until a policy study can be made.

The decision came at the close of a special board session attended by heads of several institutions and budget representatives.

A new food supervisor had been scheduled to begin work at Fairview home April 1 to inaugurate a food ration system similar to one already in effect at Oregon State hospital and Eastern Oregon state hospital. The state penitentiary also operates on a food ration system.

"I think we must review all food policies of the institutions," Gov. Holmes said after hearing state officials including Elsie Maxwell, food consultant for the board of control.

Budget proposals now before the legislature would abolish the post held by Miss Maxwell, who has favored a central ration and food control system for the state. This was included in a recommendation by Miss Maxwell, Leon Margosian, finance department, and Al Richardson, former food manager of Oregon state prison, after a survey last year.

OSC Students Hurt In Light Plane Crash

Corvallis—(U.P.)—Two Oregon State college students escaped with only minor head injuries when their two-seater Cessna, 120 missed the Corvallis airfield and crashed in a muddy field about 11:30 p.m. yesterday.

Jerry Long, 20, of Roseburg, and Willis Allen Wood, 21, of Salem, the pilot, were confined to Good Samaritan hospital here.

The two had been on a flight over Portland and Mt. Hood earlier in the evening in the plane belonging to the Salem Pilots association. They tried to return to the Salem field but the lights were out so they continued on to Corvallis where landing lights are left on all night.

Wood, who has been flying for about a year, said he thought he was on the runway when he came down. The two were knocked unconscious but later recovered sufficiently to walk about a mile to a telephone to summon an ambulance.

The flight had been Long's first in any type aircraft.

Omnibus River Bill Passes U.S. Senate

Washington—(U.P.)—The Senate today passed the omnibus river and harbors bill that included authorization of $19,800,000 for the Yaquina bay and harbor project in Oregon.

Beck Hanged, Burned In Effigy Thursday

Yakima, Wash.—(U.P.)—Dave Beck, Teamsters president, was hanged and burned in effigy here Thursday night in front of a Teamsters Union hall.

A placard reading "Majority members of Local 524 strongly in favor Senate Investigating committee" hung from the effigy.

Witnesses said a group of men who identified themselves as Teamsters came out of the union hall near the end of a stormy meeting and burned the effigy.

About 700 irate Teamster members attended the meeting to demand that steps be taken to lift a trusteeship imposed in 1934.

Members also passed a resolution saying no money from the local's general fund would be used for Beck's defense should he be brought to trial.

Fred Wehde, a trustee appointed by Beck to handle the union's affairs when it became involved in internal difficulties, said the resolution was unnecessary but was shouted down.
