How This Newspaper Helps Advertisers...

By Having Our Temperature Taken Regularly

Every newspaper has an editorial thermometer. It's called "circulation." The paper's ups and downs in its efforts to satisfy the greatest number of editorial interests is reflected in its circulation.

So that there is no possibility that the calibrations on our thermometer become blurred by self-satisfaction, we have our temperature taken regularly—by a trained A.B.C. circulation auditor.

When he leaves, there's no question of how we feel.

And, we're feeling quite healthy today, thank you—an indication that we're doing our job of providing an interested audience for your sales messages.

We would welcome the opportunity of showing you the A.B.C. facts on our circulation, and to explain just how our editorial program is helping to build reader interest for your advertising messages. Call us this week.

Local Union Officers Get Confidence Vote

Officers of Local 962, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, and Helpers, were given a "vote of confidence" at a meeting of the union here last night, it was reported this morning.

About 25 per cent of the membership, an unusually high turnout, attended the meeting, first held since Dave Beck, international president of the union, appeared on the witness stand before a Senatorial investigating committee.

The union, which is self-governing, has adopted a "wait and see" attitude toward the investigation of international union funds and officers, which have almost entirely involved the so-called trusteeship unions, that is, those which do not elect their own officers.

The investigation was discussed at length during the meeting, but the vote of confidence in the local officers was the only official action taken.

Bill Nelson is president of the local union; Bob Shaw is secretary; treasurer and business representative, and Charles Ward, C. V. Hume and William Harrison are trustees.

MEDFORD (OREGON) MAIL TRIBUNE—ELEVEN

Former Child Prodigy Opposes Exposing Brilliant Youngsters To TV Quiz Shows

(Editors note: Ten-year-old Robert Strom can push his winnings to $192,000 tonight on the TV quiz show, "The $64,000 Question." The United Press has interviewed a former child prodigy about brilliant children competing for such huge prizes.

By JAMES S. GEGGIS
United Press Correspondent
Cambridge, Mass.—(U.P.)—Dr. Norbert Wiener, one of the few child prodigies ever to become outstandingly successful as an adult, says television quiz shows create a set of false values for bright youngsters.

Siener, now 62 and a professor of advanced mathematics at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, thinks the "moral environment" surrounding a young quiz whizz could hurt his chances of becoming a useful citizen.

"The arbitrariness and ease with which money is dishied out," he said, "appears to me to be an insult to people who have to work for a living."

"The quiz show is not the sort of environment that a child prodigy should be exposed to. The publicity could be permanently damaging. It certainly is harmful."

Spoke French at 3
Dr. Wiener, who once wrote a book on prodigies, was certainly an egghead in embryo himself. He spoke both English and French at 3. At 8 he was reading Darwin's "Origin of Species" and Wood's "Natural History."

Now a roly poly extrovert sporting a gray chin beard, Dr. Wiener has authored such profound tomes as "The Fourier Integral and Certain of its Applications" and "Harmonic Analysis in Complex Domain."

He rates 27 lines in "Who's Who in America."

His father, a Harvard professor who could speak 40 languages, kept his son from the public gaze. Young Wiener entered college quietly at age 11. He had his master's degree at 17 and doctorate at 18.

Needs Free Development
The child prodigy, Dr. Wiener says, should be allowed to develop freely and be treated with sympathy, intelligence and forbearance.

"The really intelligent child quickly learns of the instability of the post-atomic bomb world," he said. "He has to face problems at a time when he is not emotionally prepared."

"The biggest difficulty for the prodigy, he added, is that he doesn't belong on either stage, "either the complete adult's or the complete child's."

"The prodigy is by no means rare, but environmental conditions favor only about one-tenth of children who are potentially gifted," he said.

"Growing up is difficult for everyone, but there are more problems for the prodigy. It's certainly no time to put him in a gold fish bowl."
