Man Invents Definitions For Clothes

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Correspondent

New York—(U.P.)—Man in our office complains that woman-talk about clothes is incomprehensible jargon to me.

Most men flounder, he said, when the conversation goes beyond the price tag. In the interest of research, I gave him a list of fashion terms most likely to be heard around the house this week, with Easter shopping in full swing. Go on, said I. Define them.

Apparently man in office is right... so far as he is concerned. I give you his definitions:

Panel—Bennet Cerf, Dorothy Kilgallen, Arlene Francis and J. Fred Muggs.

Peg-top skirt—Elvis Presley's sister.

The Channel influence—What Florence Chadwick suffers from.

Window neckline—Short girl seen from outside the house.

Plunging neckline—Dress dropped from top of the Empire State building.

Sheath—Lipsing chambermaid talking about a sheet.

Tunic—Cut received from tuba bite.

Fichu—Yes? Golf you? Or tennis you?

Elegant understatement—"It was quite considerate of you to drop the mashed potatoes in my lap instead of the minestrone soup."

Cloche—Drunk's way of saying not far.

Pillbox—Well, I've seen a stocking run, ma'am, but never seen a pill box.

Box jacket—No, I don't wish to engage in this sport either.

Accordion pleats—What squeezes your stomach when you make music.

Scalloped—Small ottoman-shaped shellfish.

Profile hat—Bonnet used to cover area from eyebrows to chin; good idea for ugly women.

Chemise top—Boy's toy made of cloth.

Florence—Abbreviation for 1-32 of a full quart sometimes abbreviated, flourant.

Barrel coat—Something worn

The look of the early Thirties is personified by Betmar in an off-face, head-hugging cloche of houndstooth check silk. Good news too is the fact that it is packable.

by a woman not yet going to Slenderella.

Association of Henpecked Males Throws in Towel

By WARREN STROTHER
United Press Correspondent

Springfield, Ill.—(U.P.)—Score one for the ladies in the battle of the sexes. The "Henpecked Husbands Association, Inc., has quit, thrown in the towel, left the battlefield.

The association was formed and legally incorporated here about three years ago to "set an example to all married males that will allow husbands to re-educate themselves to the principles of liberty and free speech."

A basic aim of the group, as outlined in the articles of incorporation, was to "outlaw nagging, unreasonable demands for explanations of husbands' spare time, breath smelling and examination of husbands' apparel for powder, lipstick and blonde tresses."

But alas, a certificate to dissolve the association has been filed with the Sangamon county recorder of deeds.

Why this surrender? William L. O'Brien, former secretary-treasurer of the group was asked.

The association had about 150 members when it was going strong, O'Brien recalled. But it broke up, little by little.

"Wayne Wallace, the president, and I and several other of the leaders were out of town, working on jobs for a long time and I suppose the thing kind of fell apart," he said.

"I'm sorry to see it break up," O'Brien said. "The association got started as a gag, but we had lots of fun with it."

"Surprisingly enough," he said, "once we got started here we received letters from all over the country from like-minded husbands who wanted to start their own chapters."

The association met at least once a month in the back room of a Springfield tavern to plot its war on nagging wives.

A favorite tactic, O'Brien recalled, was to remove the automatic washing machine from a member's home and replace it with a tub and scrub board, as a punishment for nagging.

Don't let iron skillet set in the sink. The wet metal will discolor porcelain or enamel.

Balanced Diet Still Best Bet

Washington, D. C.—"The new discoveries (in nutrition) instead of indicating extravagant departures from well-established nutrition practices, furnish increased evidence of the need for emphasis upon a well-balanced diet selected from a variety of attractive, well known and reliable protective foods," says Dr. Charles Glen King, executive director of The Nutrition Foundation in his annual report for 1956.

"All the nutrients known to be essential for human growth and health can be, and usually are, furnished safely and economically in general quantities by the regular consumption of normally balanced meals, the report states. These should include good quality protein foods such as meat, milk, fish and eggs; bread and other types of whole or enriched cereal products; yellow and green leafy vegetables; fruits and tomatoes; and sufficient total calories (fats, starches, sugars and proteins) to supply the requisite energy for work and an ideal body weight."

Dr. King also mentions the special needs of children for an assured source of vitamin D and calcium, commonly available in the milk supply.

Some 12.5 million acres of permanent and annual protective cover and 283,000 acres planted to trees were established during 1955 in the United States.
