Professor, Officers Speak for Meeting

Talent — Taking as his topic "Knowledge is Power," Dr. Arthur Kreisman of Southern Oregon college spoke for the 44th annual convention of District One, Oregon Federated Women's club, held Thursday in Talent Methodist church. This topic was the convention theme.

Among the convention guests were Mrs. George Rossman, Salem, president of the state federation; Mrs. Walter Brown, Klamath Falls, first vice-president; Mrs. John Devereux, Bandon, second vice-president; Mrs. Carl Peterson, Ashland, district president, presided.

"People lack power in proportion to their lack of knowledge," Dr. Kreisman said, and declared both history and the backward nations of today prove this point. "We in America are blessed with great libraries and communication facilities which offer everyone an opportunity for gaining knowledge," Dr. Kreisman said. "Though we possess a great overall mass of knowledge, there is still a serious lag between the overall mass and the individual; this results in ignorance, misery and misunderstanding," the speaker continued.

Ignorance Cited

Less obvious forms of ignorance of sex knowledge, religion, race, materialism and of the bonds of outmoded rules and manners of the past bring misery, hatred and strife, he stressed. "The basic need is to seek the truth through knowledge," Dr. Kreisman said in conclusion. "Any house built on falsehood will fall from inward corrosion."

Mrs. Rossman talked on the history of the Federated Women's clubs, organized in New York in 1868 by three women and which now has a membership of 11 millions. Achievements of the past year in Oregon were reviewed and stress placed on those departments where greater activity is needed.

She said emphasis is being placed on the Community Achievement contest of Sears, Roebuck company. The extension of libraries and the need for greater participation in public affairs was stressed by Mrs. Rossman.

Speaker for the luncheon was Mrs. Devereux who presented the concept that woman's responsibility today in a modern society extends beyond the home circle into a worldwide field of service to promote better understanding. She said this could be accomplished through participation in clubs. "Every woman should use all of her potentials for promoting peace among races, dispelling ignorance and prejudices and cementing friendships, she said.

Cleanup Announced

Mrs. Devereux announced April 22-27 as Spring Cleanup week, and said there should be a special campaign to collect and destroy containers which had carried poisonous insecticides, since many of these containers fall into the hands of small children.

Luncheon music was arranged by Mrs. Jack Suksdorf. On the program were the Mesdames Ross and Ernest Twedell, John Thornton of Ashland and Medford, and Miss Arleta Knowles, Grants Pass.

Wildflowers centered the luncheon tables and place favors of butterflies and pelicans were gifts of the Women's Library club, Klamath Falls.

Mrs. Charles O. Long, president of Talent Community club, served as convention hostess and the invocation was by Mrs. C. H. Pendleton, Ashland. Mrs. F. D. Rauber, Illinois Valley Women's club responded to the welcoming address and Mrs. Gertrude Bartlett, Ashland, led a memorial service. President of member clubs made activity reports, all indicating community service.

Department chairman told of the work being done in the fields of American home, youth conservation, adult education, public affairs, safety, international affairs, fine arts, poetry and the newest department, religions of the world.

At adjournment the convention gave a vote of thanks to Mrs. Peterson, and to the Rev. Alice Mae Wolley and women of the Talent Methodist church for the facilities of the church.

Outdoor Living Tips Given by Architect

Madison, Wis. — (UPI) — Now is the time to start planning for outdoor living this summer. Joseph Elfner, University of Wisconsin landscape architect, said.

Elfner said the first step in planning is to pick an area that is convenient to the house with probably some type of paved area as a solid floor for equipment.

For furniture, Elfner suggests choosing something that's comfortable, attractive and weather-proofed. Enclosure overhead and around the sides should be considered along with screened areas for night-time use.
