

Wings of Healing Settlement Reached

Portland —(U.P.)— Settlement of a $2 million libel suit against the Wings of Healing Temple in Portland and some of its officers has been reached out of court but attorneys for the plaintiffs said today they were bound not to disclose the amount of the settlement.

The evangelistic corporation and its leaders, Thomas and Evelyn Wyatt and John H. Perkins, were sued by Mr. and Mrs. Kent Wong who claimed they were libeled in a letter sent in 1955 to about 75,000 persons on the Wings of Healing mailing list.

Leland Hess, attorney for the Wongs, said the Wyatts, Perkins and the Wings of Healing corporation signed a retraction of the alleged libelous statements but that the plaintiffs agree not to disclose the amount of money that changed hands.

Not included in the settlement were two other suits brought against the evangelists for sums in excess of $200,000.

Fire Beats Wreckers To Old Buildings

Corvallis —(U.P.)— Plans to destroy abandoned buildings of the old Corvallis Lumber Company received an accidental assist Monday night when fire consumed the structures ahead of schedule.

The firm was closed more than a year ago and the mill was being salvaged for scrap.

An unattended bonfire about 6 p.m. went out of control and destroyed several of the buildings but was no threat to adjacent property. Firemen let the flames go unchecked because crews had planned to burn the buildings in about two weeks anyway. Damage was estimated at about $250.

Neuberger Says State Situation Difficult

Salem —(U.P.)— Gov. Robert D. Holmes and the state Legislature are faced with an extremely difficult situation this year because of Oregon's less favorable economic condition, Sen. Richard Neuberger said here Monday night.

The Oregon Democrat also told a Jefferson-Jackson banquet that attacks on the federal budget have been promoted by right wing groups in an effort to scuttle aid to schools and Pacific Northwest public power projects.

Neuberger said average income of Oregon residents had dropped from $202 above the national average to about $13 below the average in the past decade.

He attributed this to a decline in the lumber market, to hard agriculture and what he called the "shutting off" of needed new additions to the Columbia river low-cost federal power program.

Over half the high school boys in the country and one-third of the high school girls have part time work, according to the Institute of Life Insurance.

Moscow Broadcast Accuses Dulles

London —(U.P.)— Moscow Radio accused Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today of trying to sign up the Afro-Asian bloc in the American orbit and called this an attempt to "drive liberty into a corner and chain it up."

Moscow Radio made the statement in commenting on Dulles' speech in New York Monday to American editors.

"Influential men in Washington have been stressing frankly that the correlation of strength between Socialism - Communism and capitalism depends directly on these nations," the broadcast said.

It said Dulles and other Western statesmen were "disturbed" by the fact that "several countries have recently shown convincingly that they understand liberty not at all as it is understood by the statesmen in London, Paris and Washington."

"This disturbance runs all the way through his speech, through the attempt to put across his lecture on liberty and boxing trainer," the broadcast said. It added that Dulles "emphasized that Washington approved only of liberty which is integrated with military alliance with the United States."

TV Quiz Contestant Rallies To Tie Tie

New York —(U.P.)— Hank Bloomgarden, 28, medical research consultant who has won $52,500 on the television quiz show "Twenty-One," narrowly escaped being deposed as the program's current kingpin Monday night.

Failure to name the second of two women elected governors in the United States nearly cost Bloomgarden his crown. The researcher correctly named Miriam (Ma) Ferguson of Texas as one of the former women governors, but was unable to identify Nellie Tayloe Ross of Wyoming as the second.

Bloomgarden rallied, however, to tie his opponent, James Snodgrass, a 34-year-old artist. They wound up in a 21-21 deadlock, and will return in two weeks to try to answer further questions. Bloomgarden conceivably could raise his earnings to $84,000 on the next show, or have them reduced to $21,000.
