UHF Station to go Off Air Tuesday

Portland —(U.P.)—The nation's first commercial ultra high frequency television station will go off the air here Tuesday at conclusion of the day's broadcasting.

KPTV will air its final programs Tuesday night and then will be merged with UHF KLOR which will take over as Portland's NBC outlet on Channel 12.

Both stations were recently purchased by George Haggarty, a Detroit attorney and Texas oilman, who invested a sum reported to be nearly 4-million dollars to affect the merger and eliminate the UHF channel.

Haggarty, on his arrival here Friday said he had decided which signal tower and which call letters to use for his merged station but he was not yet ready to make the decision public.

In addition to marking the advent of UHF into the commercial field, KPTV was Portland's and Oregon's first television station when it went on the air September 30, 1952. It was then owned by Herbert Mayer who later sold to the George B. Storer interests.

KLOR went on the air for the first time March 9, 1955.
