The Medical Roundup

by

Many much-worried persons ask me if they can catch cancer from some member of the family, and my answer is "no." To show how unlikely they are to catch cancer I will say that, years ago, when I was a young man, I used to read of the great Chicago surgeon, Dr.

Nicholas Senn, who at an operation on a patient with cancer would stick a little of the cancer tissue under the skin of his arm and leave it there. It did not grow.

Recently, Drs. C. M. Southam, Alice E. Moore, and C. P. Rhoads, of New York, reported having transplanted bits of cancer under the skin of a number of persons who volunteered. First, they tried patients with cancer, and found that in some of them, the introduced cancer cells would grow. Apparently, the person had become so weakened by cancer that his body could not kill off cancer cells anywhere in him.

Then, with Charles Doan, Richard Brooks, John Porterfield and R. W. Alvis, the experimenters performed the same experiment on 14 healthy volunteers in the Ohio State penitentiary. Great credit goes to the prisoners who wanted to do something for humanity. Interestingly, their bodies strongly resisted the entrance of cancer, and soon destroyed the cells that had been introduced. These experiments confirmed what has long been known, which is that the body of a man or woman with cancer is constantly fighting hard to kill the injurious cells. Sometimes the body wins out, and then the person recovers.

A year or two ago, as I sat at a luncheon with Dr. George Crile Jr., I was pleased to hear him say that we physicians have come to worship too blindly the complete operation for cancer of the breast. In many cases the surgeon should face the fact that since it is too late to cure with the knife, no operation should be performed. Now I find the same argument in a book on diseases of the breast written by another authority—Professor D. C. Haagen, of Columbia university. He thinks that when a cure is impossible, an operation can even be harmful. He feels that then the woman should be treated with irradiation alone (x-rays etc.).

He does not operate when the patient comes with a breast that is tense and swollen and perhaps reddened, perhaps with cancerous ulcers or nodules in the skin over the breast, or when the tumor in the breast is fastened to the chest wall, or when large nodes can be felt in the arm pit, or when the arm is already swollen, or when the patient is suffering from much pain in the back, due to scattered growths.

Edward Ray Foulon, 14, of 1310 East 10th st., Medford, received minor injuries Friday night when he was struck by a car while riding a bicycle on Highway 99 near Bear Creek Orchards.

State police said Edward and another youth were riding side by side north on the highway about 11:47 p.m., when the car approached from the rear struck the side of Edward's bicycle.

The boy was knocked into a ditch and received ankle injuries. He was treated at Sacred Heart hospital and released that night.

Driver of the car was identified as Mortimer Michael McElligott, 45, of 519 King st., Medford. Officers said neither bicycle had tail lights or reflectors. McElligott told police he did not see the youths until he was a short distance from them and swerved to the left in an effort to avoid hitting them.

No citations were issued. Police said damage to the bicycle and car was minor.

Eugene-(U.P.)—James Lynch, Lakeview, Ore., senior, has been elected president of the Associated Students of the University of Oregon.
