JUNIOR TREASURE CHEST

Spin the Plate

Lois Stein

This favorite old game is always fun to play indoors or outside. Use a pie tin or an old china plate. The first spinner stands in the center and all the other players stand or kneel in a circle around him.

When the spinner spins the plate, he calls the name of one of the players. That boy or girl must rush to the spinning plate and try to catch it before it lies flat on the floor. If he's quick enough and catches it, he becomes the next spinner.

The game continues until everyone's had a turn.

Let's Draw a Snail

Ann Davidow

A pretty line that likes to twirl, Makes a nicely rounded swirl.

Then next to this curlicue, Place a triangle in view.

Now draw a head, then a tail, Add feelers and you have a snail.

And snails, when they creep, you know, Leave a little track in tow.

GIFTS FOR MOTHER

Ida M. Pardue

Mother's Day is here and if your fingers are all thumbs when it comes to turning out dainty gifts in yarn, yardage, paints, or the like, don't fret! Here are some simple gifts you can make at the last minute. For instance,

Mother would appreciate a book of colored tidbit picks. All you need to make them are some plain toothpicks and food coloring. For solid color picks, add seven or eight drops of the desired coloring to one tablespoonful of water in a clean lid of a peanut butter jar or any similar shallow container. Drop the toothpicks into this solution. Take them out with tweezers or a teaspoon and lay them on a paper to dry. Then, tie them together with colored yarn. Cover with cellophane.

Can you type neatly? Give Mother some useful address labels. Buy gummed, perforated sheets at an office- or school-supply store and print the name and address in each little oblong. Then tear them apart neatly and pack in a small box. Fancy bobby pins are easily made with a few loose beads or sequins. Use liquid glue and trim one side of a bobby pin. An oversized safety pin, decorated in the same way, becomes a very appealing dress pin. Gay drinking glass coasters are quickly cut from the colored portions of old greeting cards. Stand a glass upside down on the paper and trace around it with a pencil. Now cut out this circle, one-quarter inch wider than the traced line. This leaves a border which may be cut into scallops, fringe or points. Paste two circles together and let them dry well before cutting. If coaster shows a tendency to curl, lay a heavy book on top of it. None of these simple gifts requires any special talent; all you need are willing hands and a loving heart!
