In Accident Saturday

Mrs. Roy Pruitt, 1012 South Holly st., suffered a broken leg, a broken knee cap and severe shock in an automobile accident late Saturday night near Canyonville, the family reported this morning. She is in Sacred Heart hospital here.

It was reported that Mr. and Mrs. Pruitt were returning home from a stay in Portland when an approaching car went out of control while attempting to pass a truck and stalled in front of the Pruitt automobile, resulting in a collision. The Pruitt car was extensively damaged. Driver of the other car, which also was badly damaged, was unhurt.

Kootenai River Near Flood Stage

Spokane—U.P.—The Kootenai river is expected to reach its 31-foot flood stage at Bonners Ferry, Idaho, Thursday but the situation does not appear serious, Meteorologist Robert Small said today.

Small said the levees and dikes at the north Idaho community were constructed to withstand a water height of 37 feet. However, he said there may be minor flooding in the lower farm areas.

Small said today's reading was nearly 26 feet and a sharp increase to about 28 or 30 feet was expected tomorrow.

In recent years, the Kootenai has overflowed its banks at Bonners Ferry and caused considerable flooding and damage. The water washed out and topped most of the levees last year, but Army engineers and townspeople managed to keep the water out of the city proper.

The Blackfoot river flowed within inches of the top of the dikes protecting about 100 homes in the Blackfoot, Idaho area and flood control officials were keeping a wary eye on the stream.

The river, fed by melting snow waters which poured in from Sand creek, rose four inches Sunday and Monday, and city and county officials said the area faced a possible threat of serious floods.

A break in the dike would send waters pouring toward several new housing developments in the southeastern section of the city.
