Officials Closing Short Creek School Of Religious Sect

Kingman, Ariz. — (U.P.) — Officials are closing the school in the desolate Arizona community of Short Creek, inhabited by members of an extremist religious sect, because of charges that at least two eighth grade girls were pregnant.

E. Ray Brown, principal of the Short Creek school, also charged that the sect, an offshoot disowned by the Latter-day Saints church, again is practicing polygamy.

Two Leave School
Brown was reported as saying that during the last year two eighth-grade girls left school because they became pregnant.

"That's not polygamy, that's white slavery," the school principal was quoted as saying. "The devil is the real mastermind in Short Creek."

Brown's charges about polygamy were denied by Richard Brook, Mojave county chief juvenile probation officer. Brook said he and Sheriff Frank Porter went to Short Creek Monday and "found nothing to substantiate" Brown's charges.

The alleged resurgence in polygamy at the remote hamlet near the Utah border has drawn the attention of Arizona Attorney General Robert Morrison, who was reported to be considering closing the town due to the charges.

This isolated Arizona strip community gained fame in 1953 when law enforcement officers staged a predawn raid and arrested 26 Short Creek husbands for living in polygamy, a tenet of their religion.

China Rescue Pilot Rests in Honolulu

Honolulu — (U.P.) — Henry Bush, a Venezuelan Airline pilot who claims he made a secret rescue mission inside Red China, arrived here Wednesday night.

Bush maintained that the story about the flight was true, but indicated that he thought the newspapers over-emphasized the importance of it.

The pilot said he intended to rest two days in Hawaii before flying to Los Angeles to sell rights of the story to a motion picture concern. He plans to return to work in Venezuela on May 15.

Bush, 42, is nearing the completion of a seven-month trip around the world. He is on vacation from the Venezuelan Airlines.

He attracted world-wide attention last month when he told his story of a flight 350 miles into Communist China to rescue a 13-year-old Chinese boy held a virtual prisoner by the Communists.

Bush, and his co-pilot Mike Sullivan of Bangkok, said they turned down $10,000 from the boy's parents for making the dangerous flight. They explained they just wanted to "bring the boy home, where he belonged."

Smog Law Violation Brings Heavy Fine

Los Angeles — (U.P.) — A Portland trucking firm has been ordered to pay the largest fine ever assessed against a transportation company for violation of local smog laws.

Municipal Judge Mark Brandler Wednesday fined Exley Produce Express Co., which maintains headquarters at Portland and an office here, $500 for a smog violation last March 20 when a diesel truck emitted "heavy" smoke on the Hollywood Freeway. Brandler said the company had been found guilty of 39 smog law violations since May, 1954.

Mrs. Langley Tells Of Elkins Attempt To Sell Recordings

Portland — (U.P.) — Mrs. Janice Langley, wife of Multnomah County District Attorney William Langley, testified in Federal Court Wednesday that racketeer James Elkins tried to sell her some tape recorded conversations for $10,000.

Mrs. Langley took the stand as a government witness against Elkins and his employee, Raymond Clark, on trial on federal indictments accusing them to illegally tapping telephone communications. Mrs. Langley said Elkins played two of the recordings for her.

Blackmail Indicated
Earlier in the trial, both Langley and Teamster Chief Clyde Crosby had testified that Elkins had played them the recordings. Those witnesses had testified that Elkins told them the recordings had cost him $10,000 and they indicated he tried to blackmail them.

Mrs. Langley told the court, "For $10,000 he'd leave those tapes for me."

She said she refused to let her husband take any action against Elkins as a result of his visit because she feared for the safety of her family.

The government indicated it is nearing the end of its case against Elkins and Clark.

McCarthy Successor On Committee Named

Washington — (U.P.) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon has appointed Sen. Carl T. Curtis (R-Neb.) to succeed the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) on the Senate Labor Rackets Committee.

The 52-year-old Curtis, a prominent critic of labor, has been in the Senate since 1955. He previously served eight terms in the House.

The appointment came Wednesday after Edward Bennett Williams, the attorney for Teamsters President Dave Beck, had challenged the committee's authority to hold hearings in view of the McCarthy vacancy.

Legislator Dies

Ontario — (U.P.) — Patrick Joseph Gallagher, 72, attorney and former Oregon legislator from Malheur county, died Wednesday at a local hospital.

Gallagher, who had returned from Portland Tuesday night, suffered a fainting spell shortly before noon and died about an hour later.

He served in the Legislature in 1919 and 1921 and returned to Ontario to practice law with his son in 1925. His son, Martin Patrick, is now a Seattle attorney.
