

NEWS NOTES from Crater High School

"Underwater" was the theme of the annual Junior-Senior Prom held last night in the Crater High gymnasium. A false ceiling of of parachute silk overhung the mythical underwater scene. Multi-colored lights reflected through the silk top. A large octopus and a mermaid perched on a rock were in the center of the room. An old deserted ship hull was the bandstand. Refreshments of seafood cheese dip, sandwiches, cake and punch were served at the "Coral Inn," which was decorated like a large cave in a coral reef. The entrance was made like a whale's mouth.

Queen Betty Jo McCann and her royal court of Karen Johnson, Kay Burd and Gayle Childress, were crowned on a throne fashioned after a large pink oyster shell with a pearl in the center. Music was furnished by the Caesar Muzzioli orchestra. General co-chairmen for the event were Val McCashen and Don Jones. Warren Holbrook, art instructor, was the prom advisor.

The Junior-Senior banquet, for students not wishing to attend the prom, was held in the Pioneer Room of the Jackson hotel on the same night as the prom. A steak dinner was served and a variety show furnished the entertainment. A ventriloquist and several comedians from Portland were the main entertainers in the show. The banquet was sponsored by a group of valley churches who wished to provide a night of recreation for their high school members who did not attend the prom.

Kay Johnson was named the Girl of the Month for May at a Girls League meeting last Thursday. Kay is the student treasurer and a participant of music activities at school. At the same meeting, after the presentation of the last Girl of the Month, ballots were given out for voting of the Girl of the Year. The Girl of the Year will be presented at the awards assembly, which will be held soon.

Girls League elections were held last week to determine the candidates for office next year. Phyllis Taylor and Carol von der Hellen are the candidates for president. Vice presidential nominees are Kay Askwith and Gall Collins. Avella Prom and Margaret Taylor will be running for Girls League secretary and the candidates for treasurer are Jean Bonney and Julia Thomason. Publicity chairman candidates are freshman Patty Kime and Jeanette Purdy. The candidates will give campaign speeches tomorrow and the final election will be held Tuesday.

Last week this column stated that Mrs. Carol Ash and C. A. Meyer were responsible for the recent FTA Observation Day. This was an error and should be corrected. H. P. Jewett, superintendent of school district 6C, was responsible for the observation day and organized it. George Johns, principal of Jewett elementary school, whose name was omitted cooperated with FTA as well as C. A. Meyer, principal of the grade school and junior high, and Arthur Strauss, principal of Crater High.

The Crater Curtain Callers, drama club, held elections last week for the best actor and actress of the year. The winners will be announced at the awards assembly and will receive their "Jeromes", which is Crater High's answer to Hollywood's Oscar.

The Family Council

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a woman's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual report. The Family Council does not give advice; it merely reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Mrs. B. B.—She'd be crazy to let this chance go.
Juliette B.—I don't know whether I could be happy with him.

Mrs. B. B.—I am a widow with one daughter, a beautiful girl of 19. She has had many dates and suitors but none particularly desirable.

Recently, a very wealthy man in his late 30s has fallen in love with her. He is exceptionally handsome, has a wonderful personality, is liked and admired by everyone. He can give her anything in the world her heart desires. As a matter of fact, he told me his plans for both her and me and they are really fabulous.

Juliette reacts to all of this with complete indifference. It's not that she doesn't want luxuries and fine things, or even that she doesn't like this man. She enjoys his company and the gifts he gives her, but then she comes home and says she just doesn't know what she wants to do. I can't convince her that a poor girl doesn't run into this kind of luck every day of the week and she'd be crazy to let a chance like this go.

Juliette B.—Mother says I've got to hurry up and make up my mind, but I can't seem to decide one way or the other. Sometimes I just wish I could go to sleep and wake up to find that the whole thing has been decided one way or the other.

I like this man. I certainly can't say I hate him and I would certainly like to be rich. Mother and I have had a very tough struggle. It's not that I'm a romantic, starchy-eyed kid, either. I agree with Mother you can love a rich man just as well as a poor one. The money is quite a temptation to me, but I know that you can't be happy on money alone and I just don't know whether or not I could be happy with this man.

When we go out he takes me to wonderful places that I wouldn't otherwise see. I feel like a princess in a dream. It's all so unreal—and I'm not sure I like it.

The Council: Juliette's hesitation in the face of all the pressure her mother and suitor are putting on her is mature and courageous. She is unable to define the difficulty for herself, but it would appear from her statement that the man involved is using his money as a substitute for establishing a personal, human relationship with her.

This is why Juliette finds the whole thing "unreal." There is a vast difference between her age and that of her suitor. There is also a vast difference in their present situations and probably in their backgrounds. Such differences can sometimes be surmounted, but it takes a good deal of understanding and effort on both sides.

From both statements, it appears that there is not even the beginning of a personal understanding here. The man has convinced Mrs. B. B. that he is a "good catch." He has virtually asked her to sell her daughter and convinced her it would be an excellent deal. He hasn't attempted to woo or win Juliette's feelings. Either he hasn't enough personal integrity to think he can stand on his own merits, or he hasn't enough respect for Juliette to feel it is important to win her heart as well as her hand.

Juliette is not "crazy" or even overly romantic and starchy-eyed to look for total involvement of her mind and feelings before she commits herself to anyone. Marriage on the present basis would certainly be a mistake.

State Senate Passes Highway Attorney Bill
Salem — (UP) — The Oregon Senate Saturday passed Senate bill 425 to authorize the State Highway commission to appoint its own attorney and assistant attorney.

Attorneys for the commission now are designated by the attorney general.
The Senate also passed Senate bill 21, tightening provisions of the public employees' retirement system.

But it defeated, 16-14, Senate bill 384 which would have enabled counties, particularly Mulnomah county, to regulate by license businesses just outside of cities.

The Senate worked until noon on its heavy calendar of 31 bills, then recessed its first Saturday session until 2 p.m. when it hoped to continue until its calendar was cleaned up.

California Pilot Missing on Flight
Salem — (UP) — A California pilot, Gene Berheimer of San Leandro, was reported missing today on a flight from his home to Yakima, Wash.

Earl Snyder, state director of aeronautics, said there was nothing definite to indicate that Berheimer had reached Oregon. Search was made Sunday from Klamath Falls, The Dalles and Redmond in Oregon.

Berheimer was flying a two-place Cessna 120 painted white with a red trim. He left for California early Friday for Yakima.
