Grants Pass Woman Files Damage Suit

Margaret K. Johnson, Grants Pass, is seeking $36,454 damages in circuit court here against Harry Raymond LeClerc, 615 West Second st., Medford.

The suit is the result of a collision on Highway 99 on June 6, 1956, involving cars operated by Mrs. Johnson and LeClerc. The accident occurred about a mile south of Medford, according to the complaint.
Mrs. Johnson stated in her complaint that she was driving south on the outside lane of the highway when the defendant's car entered the highway from a private driveway and collided with her vehicle. She charges LeClerc with six counts of carelessness and negligence, including failure to have his car under control and failure to maintain proper lookout.

The plaintiff claims to have received multiple injuries in the accident, including contusions, abrasions, a cracked rib and wrist fracture. She claims that as a result of the injuries use of her left wrist is permanently impaired.
She asks $35,000 general damages, $804 for medical care and $650 for damage to her vehicle. Mrs. Johnson is represented by Bailey, Lezak, Swink and Gates, Grants Pass law firm.

Holmes Signs Bill On Death Penalty

Salem (U.P.)—Gov. Robert D. Holmes Tuesday signed a bill calling for a vote next year to abolish the death penalty in Oregon.

The House bill, introduced by Rep. Robert Duncan, Don Willner, Keith Skelton and George Layman, and Sen. Monroe Sweetland and Dan Dimick, would abolish capital punishment, except in cases where a person under life sentence commits first degree murder.

End to capital punishment in Oregon was asked by Gov. Holmes in his inaugural address at which time he said: "I find nothing in enlightened religion or the ethics of modern civilization that justifies an 'eye for an eye' philosophy."
If voters approve the measure in November, 1958, it will be the second time in the state's history that the death penalty has been barred. The first repeal of capital punishment came in 1914. It was restored to the law books in 1920 after Gov. James Withycombe appealed that there was no suitable punishment for treason during World War I.

MEDFORD (OREGON) MAIL TRIBUNE—THIRTEEN

Indecent Literature Discussed by Local Ministerial Group

Paul Haviland, chairman of a Kiwanis club committee investigating what can be done about removing indecent literature from news stands, spoke to the Medford Ministerial association Tuesday morning.
"The average person is not aware of the problem of indecent literature on the news stands today," Haviland said. "This problem has grown by leaps and bounds during the past four years."
Using cardboard paste ups of some dozen magazines that he had purchased in Medford, he illustrated the type of literature that may be bought here.

The samples shown, which Haviland stressed was "big business," include some of the largest selling magazines in the United States. Using color, slick paper, and good layout, the magazines may be found in larger numbers on some of the newsstands, he added, than other types of literature.
"The selling of such literature is as bad as the peddling of narcotics," Haviland said, and included some paper back pocket-books in the indecent literature now available on news stands.
Haviland said it was the job of the people to bring to the public's attention the amount of indecent literature now being printed. Some of the publications, he said, gross more than 3 1/2 million annually. Haviland said the committee on indecent literature expects to contact civic and fraternal groups, parent-teacher associations and the ministerial groups to get the public behind the cause.

Resolution Adopted
The Ministerial association adopted a resolution regarding the accident potential of railroad crossings in Medford. The resolution, a copy of which was sent to the Medford city council, stated "The Ministerial association issues a protest to the city council against the excess speed of Southern Pacific trains through the city of Medford and lack of adequate safety precautions."

Officers for the coming year were elected by the association at the meeting. Clayton Crisman, pastor of the Friends church, was elected president; the Rev. James Neely, pastor of the First Baptist church, vice-president; and the Rev. Escil Hiser, pastor of the Church of the Brethren, secretary-treasurer.

The Rev. Raymond Hurn, pastor of the First Church of the
