The Classic Bride returns

BONNY is the bride gowned in the grand manner. Her attire is as romantic as the event itself, making her the picture of femininity. Little wonder, then, that the trend for weddings—large and small—is a return to elaborate bridal dresses and exquisitely worked headpieces. They're perfect accompaniments to the strains of Lohengrin.

Fabrics: Foremost, Stern & Stern, Skinner, Whelon. Shoes: Andrew Geller. Interiors: Leona Kahn.

Photographed by Henri Janson in cooperation with the Lace Institute.

Marie of Pandora creates a lovely lace redingote over a strapless tulle dress that solos as a ball gown (about $125).

by Allyn Rice

The bride wears nylon pointe d'esprit and dull-faced satin designed by Gaston Mallet of Murray Hamburger (about $125). Marge Rosenthal's hat is perfect touch (about $24).

There's a Spanish feeling to this re-embroidered Chantilly lace gown from Priscilla of Boston (about $300). The tiers form a chapel sweep in back. Headpiece shown is about $40.
