The Medical Roundup

Facing the Painful Word

In a recent article, Mrs. Adelyn Pagenstecher told of her experience with her daughter, Mari, who was born without proper hearing apparatus. She tells of the great distress she felt the day it suddenly came over her that the child could not hear a word. Then came the special schooling that enabled the child to talk.

Today, it is the fashion to teach that there is nothing to heredity, and everything about men and women is due to their environment in childhood. My feeling is that no open-minded person with three or four brothers and sisters can believe such a thing. Many brothers and sisters who grew up together on a lonely ranch—with certainly the same environment—are so different that one can hardly believe that they are related. One may be an almost rubber stamp copy of his father's, while another may be just like a brother of his mother.

I thought of this as I read an article by H. W. Nissen on the temperament and behavior of the 57 chimpanzees that have been born and reared in the remarkably uniform environment of the great Yerkes laboratory of Primate Biology. As he says, these apes show behavior as distinctive as that of "an equal number of people drawn from any place on earth." Some are affectionate and some are not; some are aggressive and some are submissive; a few are clever mechanically, and most are not.

Dr. Alvarez hopes his readers will understand that it would not be possible for him to answer requests for information or to attempt to diagnose by mail.

Courage Praised

All praise to Mrs. Pagenstecher for her great courage in writing this, and for the service she has done to all grief-stricken mothers who have a loved one handicapped in some way. Let all of us who have in the family one who is insane, or feeble-minded, or epileptic learn to use the terrible word freely, without shuddering and without any feeling of shame. It is the only way thing to do; it is the first step along the road to helping the loved one get better.

The next great step is to join one of the National Associations organized to help persons who are handicapped in the way your child is. Then you will not feel quite so alone in your grief; you will have joined with hundreds of thousands of other men and women who are sorrowing just as you are sorrowing. If you can contribute something to the study of the particular disease and the discovery of some way of avoiding it or curing it, that also will be good.

When I was a boy, 60 years ago, tuberculosis was a terrible pestilence, crippling and maiming millions of children and killing millions of grown-ups. Practically nothing was being done about it because people were too ashamed even to talk about it. I remember people who let several of their children die of it, rather than admit that it ran in their family. They didn't want ever to go to a hospital with it for fear the neighbors would find why they had gone. Only when people developed the courage to admit freely that they had tuberculosis, and only when they began to use that dread word, were doctors able to build sanatoria and to get people into them early enough so that they could get well. As a result, in the last 50 years, the mortality rate from tuberculosis has gone steadily down and down until today, some of the original sanatoria, for lack of patients, are closing their doors.

Again I say, let us all learn to face and use the hard word, even though the sound of it cuts into us like a knife.
