The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic
Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

Are X-Rays Dangerous

Of late, there have appeared in the public prints so many alarmist articles on x-rays that many persons have become worried. Now they fear even to have their teeth x-rayed or to get an occasional x-ray examination made of their chest or their stomach or bowel. I have read a number of the articles in which able scientists have discussed this subject, and I am not alarmed. I will not worry about getting x-rayed ever year during my annual check-up.

Dr Alvarez

I know intimately a number of physicians in x-ray who, for 30 years or more, have examinined many patients a day back of the fluorescent screen in the dark room, and hence have received enormously more radiation than any patient will ever get, unless he has strenuous treatment or some other serious disease. And these friends of mine do not appear to have suffered in any way. In their 60's and 70's they are healthy. I think this is an unanswerable argument.

As my son, Professor Luis W. Alvarez pointed out last year in a long article in "Resarch Reviews," standards of safety have been set up, and all capable men are now on watch to avoid injuring anyone. My good friend, Dr. Dwight H. Murray, president of the American Medical Association, has just written an article in which he says he feels that in the hands of experts the several types of radiation are safe enough. There is no need for getting excited.

Electroshock Treatments

A woman writes angrily to say that I had no right to mention electroshock treatments for helping women in a bad depression, such as can come with the manopause. She says that she had too many electroshocks; she kept getting them long after they failed to do her any good, and they have now disturbed her memory a bit. She feels that they should now be prohibited by law. I am sorry, but the lady is wrong. She ought to see some of the many depressed persons who are quickly brought out of a melancholia with a few electroshocks. It is one of the miracles of present-day medicine.

What we humans often need most in this world is good sense. My friends the psychiatrists tell me they doubt if it is good sense to go ahead and give dozens of shocks when a few have shown no sign of helping. They tell me, also, that it is no good sense to go on for six months giving shots of ovarian hormone to a depressed woman who can be brought out of her melancholia probably only with a few electrochocks.

SOC Professor To Attend Meeting

Ashland — Dr. Lloyd Pennington, assistant professor of science at Southern Oregon college, will attend the Northwest Regional Meeting of the American Chemical society at Spokane Thursday and Friday, June 13-14.

Southern Oregon college will be the only one of the colleges of education represented.

Dr. Pennington will present a paper, "Chelating Ion Exchange Resins Preparation and Analytical Application" at the conference. Max B. Williams, professor of chemistry at Oregon State college, will appear as co-author of the paper. The research work for the paper was largely accomplished at SOC, and was instrumental in obtaining a grant of $850 for a spectrophotometer for use in research work at the college. The grant, first of its kind at SOC, was made by the Tektronix, Inc., Portland.

Instrumental Analysis Conducted by Class

Ashland — For the past few weeks the quantitative analysis class at Southern Oregon college, under the direction of Dr. Lloyd Pennington, has been doing work in instrumental analysis.

This type of work is not ordinarily carried out in undergraduate quantitative analysis courses, school officials said.

Among samples analyzed have been some of local water supplies for calcium, sodium, lithium, and fluoride. Lithia water was included in the study. Some of these analyzes were made with the flame photometer and the Beckman spectrophotometer which are recent additions to the school's collection of analytical instruments.

Other instruments which are being used are the polarimeter, the colormeter, electroanalyzer, the conductivity bridge, and the pH meters.

Denessen Held Guilty Of Beating Daughter

Portland—(AP)—Glen W. Denessen, 35, was found guilty late Tuesday on an assault and battery charge for the beating last November of his daughter, Janet, 13.

The jury deliberated 45 minutes and voted 11 to 1 for conviction. Denessen made no comment.

Circuit Judge Alfred T. Sulmonetti ordered a pre-sentence investigation. Denessen could receive a maximum of five years in prison.

The conviction followed a trial which began last week and which saw the girl, now in a foster home, take the stand as a state witness. Denessen and his wife denied the girl had been beaten as the state claimed.

Forest Service Accepts Development of Resort

San Francisco—A proposal for development of a resort at Panther meadow about 50 miles north of Shasta lake in Siskiyou county has been accepted by the U.S. forest service.

The development by the Mt. Shasta Ski Bowl corp., is to include a chairlift, shelter house, restaurant, parking area and aerial tramway. It is expected to be completed by 1960 and to cost $1,000,000.

Jackson County Gets Promotion in Shows

Active promotion of vacation possibilities in Jackson county was carried on this spring in seven major travel shows attracting over one million persons, according to Don McNeil, secretary of the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce.

The publicity was made possible through the Pacific Northwest Travel association and appeared in 30-foot displays in San Francisco, Kansas City, Chicago, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Dallas and Los Angeles.

At least 1,400,000 travel folders were distributed.
