Souvenir of Civil War Days Found At Domiciliary

There are no civil war veterans at Camp White, but a grandson of a trusted aide and friend of General George B. McClellan, of the union forces, has been hiding his light under a bushel. Among his collection of family mementos is a photograph of Colonel John Mehan, his grandfather, taken at Camp Winfield Scott, near Yorktown, May 2, 1862 by none other than the famous photographer of the Civil War — Brady.

Legend Seen
On the back of the picture of the camp group of soldiers is this notation: "Brady's Album Gallery—No. 366—Group, Topographical Engineers."

Then this legend appears: "The photographs of this series were taken directly from nature, at considerable cost. Warning is therefore given that legal proceedings will be at once instituted against any party infringing the copyright."

Permission has been given by Ralph Baker, Camp White, to use this photograph, and it is more than likely that the heirs at law will not object to publication of this interesting souvenir of the Civil War in the Mail Tribune on this Memorial Day.

Gets Recognition
Mather B. Brady, the official photographer, is recognized in history as the first news photographer engaged during wartime

Japanese Prosecution Agrees To New Trial For U.S. Serviceman

Tokyo — The Japanese prosecution has asked that the first American serviceman ever sentenced to death in a Japanese court be given a new trial, it was disclosed today.

The Sendai procurator's office agreed that the hanging sentences decreed by Sendai district court on March 20 for Pvt. Orvis L. C. Boone, 24, of Galveston, Tex., and his Japanese sweetheart were too severe.

Life Sentence Demanded
The procurator had demanded a life sentence for Boone and Shigeko Sasaki, his 20-year-old sweetheart, on charges of murder, robbery and arson. The court by-passed the recommendation and imposed the death sentence because of the "barbarity of the crime."

The defense appealed to the Sendai high court for a new trial and the procurator's office agreed that the case should be reopened. The appeal for a new trial came at a time when Japanese and American feelings over the "Girard case" had reached a new peak.

Center of Controversy
Army Specialist 3c William S. Girard of La Salle, Ill., is the center of an international controversy over whether he should be tried in a Japanese court or by U. S. Army court martial for the accidental shooting dead of Mrs. Naka Sakai on a U.S. firing range.

There was no such dispute in the case of Boone. The Negro soldier was clearly off duty at the time he and his sweetheart robbed and bludgeoned a Japanese woman to death, then set fire to her house to conceal the crime.

Victim of Robbery Flags Wrong Auto

Saint Brienc, France — Francois Cordillet, flagged down a passing car Wednesday, jumped in and told the driver and his companion he had been slugged by two men and rubbed of his watch and car. Then he realized he was in his own car talking to the men who had robbed him. Cordillet, a 43-year-old exterminator, leaped out at the first opportunity and raced for a police station.
