

State Police Report Two Accidents On Memorial Day

State police today reported two Memorial day traffic accidents, one north of Central Point on Highway 99 and the other near Prospect on Highway 62.

Vehicles operated by Robert Card Gail, 39, route 1, box 382, Gold Hill, and Jean Earl Horton, 62, Portland, collided at 4 p.m. Thursday on Highway 99 near Seven Oaks corner, north of Central Point. According to police, Gail was northbound in the outside lane and Horton was southbound in the inside lane.

Driver Cited

Horton said another car crowded him and he applied his brakes, skidding into the path of Gail's vehicle. There were no injuries. Horton was cited by officers for violation of the basic rule.

A car operated by James Delbert Setzer, 18, Prospect, went out of control and struck a guard rail about 100 yards south of the Rogue River bridge on Highway 62 near Prospect about 8:30 a.m. Thursday.

Police said the vehicle, which was traveling west, apparently went out of control because of a low left rear tire.

Delmer Gene Maloy, 16, Prospect, a passenger in the car, was taken to Rogue Valley hospital for treatment of rib fractures. Neither Setzer nor his other passenger, Sheila Dee Dolenshek, Trail, was injured.

Khrushchev Interview Scheduled on TV

Television station KBEST-TV will carry an interview of Nikita S. Khrushchev, first secretary of the central committee of the Soviet Union communist party Sunday, June 2, from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

The interview, conducted by newspaper correspondents, will be one in a series of "Face the Nation" programs on Columbia Broadcasting System television and radio networks.

Questioning will be unrehearsed and impromptu. CBS said the interview will employ the simultaneous translation technique used in United Nations sessions, which will enable statements to be translated while they are being made.

News About Books

The American Civil war has produced more literature than any other war in history and continues to be an inexhaustible source of inspiration not only for historians and biographers but for novels as well.

Author Bruce Catton, whose Civil war history, "This Hallowed Ground," is now on best-seller lists, feels that heightened interest in the war and in America's historical past has resulted from recent literature's presentation of that past from the standpoint of ordinary people. The popularity of Catton's latest book has brought about renewed interest in his earlier book on the subject, "Mr. Lincoln's Army." Another popular recent book on the period is "Grey Fox; Robert E. Lee and the Civil War," by Burke Davis. Complete Biography.

The most complete and authentic biography of the great man and soldier remains, however, Freeman's four-volume "R. E. Lee." Among the many recent biographies of Civil war personalities most give special attention to Lincoln and to his family. James G. Randall has just published "Mr. Lincoln," a one-volume work based on his four-volume biography, "Lincoln the President." Ruth P. Randall has rounded out the family picture in "Mary Lincoln" and in "Lincoln's Sons." We have a vivid picture of Harriet Beecher Stowe in Forrest Wilson's "Crusader in Crinoline," and in Mrs. Nina Baker's "Cyclone in Calico," the life of Mary Beckerdike, the first field hospital nurse in American history.

Leading War Novel
While MacKinlay Kantor's "Andersonville" remains the leading Civil War novel, several others of consequence are available: "Peace at Bowling Green," by Leland Crabb, a story of the war in Kentucky; "Roll, Shenandoah," Lancaster's story of Union troops in the Shenandoah Valley, and "The Horse Soldiers," Harold Sincclair's fictional account of Grierson's cavalry raid. Van Wyck Mason writes with a Southern viewpoint in "Proud New Flags," the story of the South's efforts to build a navy, "Our Valiant Few," relating the South's attempts to break the Union naval blockade and "Blue Hurricane," a novel of the "river war" along the Mississippi. Other enjoyable novels of the period include "Jubilee," by Brick, "Captain Little Ax," by Street, "Band of Angels," by Warren, "Immortal Wife" and "Love is Eternal" by Stone.

Any of the books mentioned may be borrowed through any agency of the Jackson county library.

Chinese Artillery Fire Or. Quemoy Fatal to One

Taipei — (UP) — Communist Chinese artillery fired 462 rounds at the Nationalist offshore islands of Quemoy and Little Quemoy Thursday, killing one Nationalist Chinese soldier.

A defense ministry communiqué said the casualty was the first this year.

Wind Causes Another Delay in Atomic Test

Las Vegas — (UP) — Adverse weather conditions today forced the postponement of the second nuclear test in the Atomic Energy Commission's extensive spring-summer series at the Nevada Proving Grounds.

The shot, scheduled for 3:55 a.m. P.S.T. was called off late Thursday night when a wind pattern developed which would have sprayed communities to the southeast of the test site with "unacceptable" amounts of fallout.

While plans were made for new tests, the AEC continued to track three air masses containing the radioactive remnants of Tuesday's opening detonation.

Scientists reported three masses at 10,000, 20,000 and 30,000 feet were over parts of Idaho, Oregon, California and Arizona Thursday.

Zeppo Marx Clashes With Foe in Niterity

Hollywood — (UP) — Zeppo Marx, former member of the Marx Brothers comedy team, says he doesn't even know the big, burly ex-boxer he got into a fight with at a Hollywood "strip" niterity.

The unidentified boxer and Marx engaged in a brief, bloodless brawl Wednesday night at the Mocambo, one of Hollywood's favorite places for one-punch battles.

Bystanders said the fight started after blonde model Joyce Niven came to the comedian's table and accused the beauty he was with, socialite Lillian Sherlock, of stealing her boyfriend, Marx.

When Marx escorted Miss Niven back to her table, it was reported her male companion took offense and grabbed the comedian. The fight was broken up by Mocambo employees.

"I got in a couple of good clouts," Marx said. "I'm glad nobody was hurt."

Portland Man Shot In Clatskanie Scrape

St. Helens, Ore. — (UP) — Cecil H. Black, 43, Portland, was reported in satisfactory condition in a local hospital today after he was shot three times near Clatskanie Thursday.

State Officer William Flippo arrested William Morris, 36, also of Portland, in connection with the shooting.

Black was wounded in the chest and thigh. He told state police the shooting occurred after an argument about driving.

Food, liquor and tobacco account for about one-third of all consumer consumption expenditures in the U.S.

Youngsters Fishing Derby Saturday

Ashland — Waters of Ashland creek will open to fishing Saturday morning for the annual fishing derby for youngsters 13 years of age and younger.

Chet Squire will explain rules to the anglers at 9:30 a.m. at the tennis courts and fishing will begin at 10 a.m. Each entrant must have a permit which is available without charge at the police station or any sports equipment store.

More than 1,000 trout will be planted in the creek tomorrow morning. Prizes for various local stores handling sports equipment.
