Market Experts Agree Supports Will Keep List From Decline

By ELMER C. WALZER
United Press Financial Editor
New York — Market experts are pretty well in agreement that the list has enough built-in supports to keep it from a big decline at this time.

The main one of these is the inflationary forces at work throughout the economy. One market commentator says this is a strong offset to continued monetary restraints.

find the former list is the longer.

They top it with inflationary forces which are supposed to lead investors to seek haven in common stocks.

More Goods in Demand
Then there is prospect ahead of a big population making demands for more and more goods; the outlook for vast strides in peacetime uses of nuclear energy; moves toward greater use of automation.

Also on the favorable side are indications that inventories are getting trimmed down sufficiently to warrant an early spurt in manufacturing; an apparent low in residential building to be followed by an upturn; a pickup in automobile and steel production.

Also the road building program is reportedly pickup up; summer travel with its big spending is getting under way; farm income is improving; and there is a strong, stable consumer demand for goods.

On the adverse side there are such items as tight money, disarmament talk; cutbacks in some military procurement; no tax cut this year; some poor earnings statements; and a bond market suffering from indigestion.

Trust Busting Worrisome
A big factor that might come into the picture to frighten Wall Street is the trust-busting movement gathering momentum in Washington.

The Du Pont case of last week is said to open the way for greater concentration on anti-trust activity.

Wall Street, of course, is interested in what disposition the court will make of the Du Pont case finally. It is up to the court to say what should be done about the 63,000,000 shares of General Motors stock Du Pont holds.

Selling that amount of stock is said to be out of the question since it would knock the price of GM down sharply. A distribution to Du Pont stockholders would boom that stock and probably help the whole market, according to some commentators.

Incidentally, Wall Street isn't taking the disarmament talk too seriously. It is worried over cutbacks in some military appropriations, though.

Plains States Hit By Violent Storms

By UNITED PRESS

Violent storms ripped the Plains States Sunday and today, with tornadoes touching down in at least three states and heavy rains in parts of Kansas and Oklahoma.

Twisters raced through central South Dakota, western Kansas and northwestern Oklahoma during the night. There were no reports of serious damage.

Funnel clouds were sighted in sections of Arkansas and along the eastern slopes of the central Rockies.

Cooler weather overspread the Rockies, easing the immediate threat of flooding from rapidly melting mountain snows.

Off the Gulf Coast, a tropical storm veered northeastward into the open sea after capsizing a cabin cruiser with the apparent loss of five lives near St. Petersburg, Fla.

Mostly fair skies are seen for New England and the mid-Atlantic states, while scattered showers are expected west of the Rockies except for the Pacific Northwest.

Ike's Illness Brings Break in Stock Values

New York — President

Eisenhower's latest illness today brought a $2 billion break in the valuation of all listed stocks followed by a rally of more than $1 billion from the lows.

The announcement of Eisenhower's illness came after the market had enjoyed a half hour rise that lifted prices to within touching distance of the year's highs.

First reports brought a variety of rumors, including one that he had been hospitalized and another that it was a recurrence of his heart condition. Denial of both brought a recovery later on but not until the activity had churned up such volume that tapers had fallen behind by 14 minutes.

Dow Jones final stock averages: 30 industrials 503.76 off 1.87; 20 rails 144.23, off 0.78; 15 utilities 73.62, off 0.08; 65 stocks 174.86, off 0.57.

Sales today were 3,050,000 shares, compared to 2,380,000 Friday.

Professional Tracker To Hunt for Lost Man

Portland — W. S. Hood told the United Press here Sunday night he is hiring a professional tracker and woodsman and that the search for his father-in-law, Mark Franklin, 79, Portland, may go on "indefinitely."

Hood, who had been at the search scene near Molalla from the outset over a week ago, said he met with Oregon state police and Crown Zellerbach authorities — on whose timber holdings Franklin is presumed lost — and decided to hire an expert to continue the search.

Hood said E. J. Molalla, the tracker, will be in charge of the new search effort, and that he will be aided by the state police and Crown Zellerbach officials.

Also joining in the search were more than 50 members of a mounted posse.
