Mrs. Charles Stearns, presented the retiring president, Mrs. L. R. Thomas, with her past president's pin. Corsages were presented to each of the new officers and each one participated in a candle lighting ceremony.

During the business meeting delegates to the convention of Oregon Federation of Garden Clubs at Coos Bay were chosen. They are Mrs. von Ting and Mrs. Mansfield; alternates are Mrs. Harper and Mrs. F. F. Burk.

Guest speaker for the program was Mrs. Jewell Parr of Phoenix; her topic was the "Do's and Don'ts of Corsage Making." Mrs. Parr emphasized that flowers have a very definite place in today's fashion. They have been worn and carried by women down through the ages; they never go out of date. Corsages are roses, carnations, violets, and orchids. Chrysanthemum is the most versatile flower for making corsages for outdoor or indoor wear. In conclusion Mrs. Parr said that "everyone ought to wear flowers so that others may enjoy them."

The tea table was centered with a bouquet of roses and shasta daisies in pastel shades. Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. R. W. Smith, Mrs. E. M. Wallin, Mrs. R. T. Nichol, Mrs. Elton Waldron, Mrs. H. J. Ticknor and Mrs. Agnes Wood. Miss Snedcor and Mrs. Mansfield poured.

Guests were Mrs. V. Pathman, Riverside, and Miss Louise Eckerson of Medford.

Special awards were given Mrs. Frank Carson, and Mrs. C. L. Miller.

Colorful Furniture Said Sign of Spring

Chicago — Home decorators had a bad case of spring fever this year, and their ailment showed up in the new spring furniture.

Every material from wood to wrought iron has taken on some colorful spring changes, says Dorothy Iwig, University of Illinois home furnishings specialist.

In wrought iron lawn pieces, says Miss Iwig, rich blues, greens, and even lilacs and terra cottas are used with the old standard white.

When chosen tastefully, she says, this colorful furniture can do much to lighten and brighten a room. But the furniture must fit into the character of the room, she warns.

The practical homemaker doesn't have to buy new furniture to keep up with the trend, says Miss Iwig. Either paint old furniture or add colorful cushions, she advises.

Five Million Youngsters Go To Camp

By GAY PAULEY United Press Correspondent New York — This is the time of the year the children head for the hills and the weepy parents for the handkerchiefs. The end of school signals the beginning of the camping season, and by the July Fourth holiday, an estimated 5 million youngsters from 6 to 16 will be over running 14,000 camps of all sizes and descriptions, both private and public.

It will take 250,000 staff personnel to direct all this youthful energy into the proper channels. This statistical look at the camping picture comes from Maxwell Alexander, a practicing attorney, former camp owner, and executive director of The Association of Private Camps, Inc.

Few Tears Natural Alexander, who has been in camp work for 30 years, said it is only natural for a parent to shed a few tears when John heads for camp. "But sometimes," he added, "you'd think it was a permanent parting."

Alexander believes the camping benefits parents almost as much as the children. It gives each a vacation from the other, he said. The parents have a chance to "re-evaluate" the child's chance to "develop security, to quit treating the parent as a crutch."

"Most children are happy at camp," said Alexander. "That's why parents often are startled when on their first visit they find the child so busy with activities he has little time for them."

Try By Stages He conceded that some children do not "take" to camping—especially to the long two-month period with only a couple of parental visits. He suggested in such cases the parent let the child try camping by stages—stay three weeks one summer, four the next.

"Don't cram it down his throat," said Alexander. "To the mother worried about placing her child in the hands of 'strangers' for the summer, I would say they are not strangers. They are substitute parents. Seventy per cent of all camp personnel today is recruited from the ranks of college students, teachers, and principals. And all camps are under regulation by state health and labor departments."
