Lumber Employers Warned of Strike

Portland — Lumber employers were warned Wednesday night by the AFL-CIO International Woodworkers of America that some of them will "soon find themselves faced with a strike" unless they move off their "stand pat" positions in wage negotiations.

The AFL-CIO lumber and sawmill workers voted unanimously to take an immediate strike vote against employers who have not signed contracts. The LSW wants a five-cents an hour pay boost.

The vote will be taken in the LSW's Western council covering Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Nevada and Northern California.

Five thousand workers are affected.

The Georgia-Pacific corporation and Willamette Valley Lumber company will be excluded. The workers just recently received a five-cents per hour pay hike from the two firms.

Also excluded will be 3000 employees of the Weyerhaeuser fiber company. Employees of that firm were granted a 10 cents-an-hour pension plan recently.

Morgan Joined In Rate Protest

Salem — State Agriculture Director Robert J. Steward today joined with Howard Morgan public utility commissioner, in appealing to the Transcontinental Freight Bureau that proposed reductions in westbound rail rates on fresh meats not be placed in effect without similar reductions in westbound rail rates on live animals.

In a letter to Morgan, Steward pointed out that Oregon livestock producers are largely dependent for their market upon the ability of Oregon meat packers to provide a consistent competitive demand for their live stock. To permit competitive operations with products shipped from Midwest plants, the present cost relationship between Midwest meat and that of live animals shipped from the Midwest to Oregon meat packers must be maintained, Steward said.

Steward said the agriculture department was afraid of the effects of the proposed reductions in fresh meat rates from the Midwest because it might slow down the slaughtering and sale of livestock in Oregon and other Western states.

Argentina and New Zealand lead the world in per capita meat consumption.

Porter Impressed by Prestige Loss Suffered in Latin America

By A. ROBERT SMITH
Mail Tribune Correspondent

Washington — In a week end visit in Puerto Rico, Rep. Charles O. Porter was most impressed by the unanimous opinion among those he met that America's foreign policy toward South American dictators as ruined American prestige in Latin America.

This has been highlighted by the Murphy and Galindez cases involving the Trujillo regime of the Dominican Republic. Porter said democratic forces in South America who wage a constant fight with the forces of dictatorship are disheartened by the aid America has given and continues to give the dictators. He was told this by newsmen, as well as partisan groups who invited him to Puerto Rico because he has championed the investigation of the Murphy-Galindez case.

The State Department won't say how much money out of foreign aid program has been channeled to Trujillo's country, but it runs into the millions. Nor will the department of state specifically say what the military aid funds have been spent for.

Morse Wants to Know
Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) raised questions about this program this week during Senate

Foreign Relations committee hearings on the appointment of Roy R. Rubottom as assistant secretary of state for Latin American affairs. Morse wanted to know whether the U.S. couldn't use aid funds as a lever on the Trujillo government to bring about better cooperation in solving the Murphy-Galindez case. Rubottom never answered the question, and Morse didn't press him for more than a general policy statement.

Rubottom recalled that during World War II, the Caribbean was "infested with enemy submarines." He said Trujillo's Caribbean stronghold is one of 12 South American countries with which the U.S. had made military defense agreements, under which we supply certain equipment and military aid funds. He said America has established a guided missile testing station in the island which the Dominican Republic shares with Haiti but didn't say which country it is located in.

Morse pointed out that recently Cuba's Batista regime, another dictator, received a shipment of tanks which caused bad reaction against America from elements that favor democratic government. Rubottom said he thought the timing of the shipment was unfortunate. He said the military defense agreement with each country carries an injunction against the people of the country receiving it.

The government of Columbia was recently overthrown, Rubottom pointed out, without
